NOTE; In order to save time, if after you have read this, you want to email me and tell me how you are now more confused than ever, how stupid I really am, and how this was all such a huge waste of time, please don't bother. I have already been told those things at least a million times. Thanks anyway though, for the thought.

NOTE, this is specifically to call your attention to the Copyright notice at the top of this page. Please read it and comply with it.

BEDSOLE HISTORY

As you can see, not being a computer Czar, I cannot control the location of the page numbers in this book. When I type it, its fine, but when I transfer it to a file, it gets all out of whack. Then, when I transfer it to you, it will not stay as typed, and the numbers may be any place on the page, and names, dates and etc., move around between computers and format changes. I have no idea how to keep all that from happening. Apparently, no one else does either and I have asked every one I know. Anyway, the numbers are theoretically at the bottom of each page. At least we can use the numbers as location markers, so we can say "Its between numbers 156 and 157" or whatever. That will prevent having to guess where something is located. Since this is my last version and I have been all over the internet asking for information from other Bedsoles, and receiving next to nothing, if you see something which is wrong or you have additions to make to the List in Part Two, please don't tell me about it. I quit.

In the beginning, I just wanted to know where I got this name. But, as time went on, and I learned more and more about our ancestors and all the unbelievable hardships they endured, I realized that unless I researched and wrote this History and the related Ancestor And Descendant list, all the current and future Bedsole descendants would never know what those ancestors went through and would never know their true roots either. But I also knew that if I did'nt do it, then it would never be done, because I knew that few people have what it takes to spend that many years of their lives to produce this kind of information on their ancestors and descendants. Does that make me some kind of super-human, you ask? …YES INDEED it does in fact.

I began this project in 1950. This History and List and especially the List, represents more than 58 years of the most demanding, expensive, time-consuming, frustrating, demanding and maddening work I have ever encountered in my life. Now, I give it to all you Bedsoles and relatives most of whom I don't even know, for nothing. I hope you truly appreciate what went into it, and what it represents. I know how priceless it really is, and I hope you do too. Believe me, it becomes more valuable to the point of being absolutely priceless, as In the absence of most-needed documentation and by reading, researching, analyzing and documenting what little Bedsole information was available, together with all the books, websites, and other relevant historical sources, then flying to Germany twice and researching there, because my Dad had said Bedsole originated in Germany, I have put together my best, educated and informed guesses in many cases, at what I feel is very close to the facts back then. Some of my conclusions may prove to be wrong in the future, but I invite anyone to prove anything I claim to be true, is actually wrong. The only acceptable proof from someone that I have something wrong however, would be their own documentation and not their best guess. Best guess by anyone else, would not be as accurate, and certainly not more accurate than my own and I guarantee that.

Here are only a few reasons why one can spend so much time and money looking for the older Bedsole records and never find any. First of all, no less than 55 counties in NC where the first ones arrived in Bath County, NC, from Germany, were created or partially created from Bladen County, where, in 1950, I first found the Bedsoles. Just trying to find some records on Bath County, NC alone (which became Beaufort County) where the first Bedsole appeared, I ran into this: What few records do exist for Bath County are scattered in the courthouses of some of its early precincts, and in the Archives in Raleigh. No one knows what is where, or if in fact, any records at all, do exist. Bath County's earliest recorded deeds for example, date from 1700 and are included in Beaufort Co. Deed Book One (1701-1729). However, several other early Bath County deeds and other documents, some dated before 1700, may be found in the records of Albemarle County and scattered among its various precincts, and there are likely some in other unknown counties. Most of the earliest records of Craven and Hyde Counties (Created from Bath) have not been preserved at all, and they surely had many Bath County records too. Beaufort and Hyde Precincts are known to have held joint sessions of court, for and including Bath, apparently in Beaufort. Eighteen Bath County Wills (1702-1718), mostly for both Beaufort and Hyde Precincts, were recorded in Beaufort Precinct and may be found in Beaufort County's Land Deed Book (Terrific logic) # 1 and, although they are Wills, they are not recorded in the Will Books in the Beaufort County Clerk's Office, as you would expect. Also ten of the eighteen do not appear in Grimes' "Abstracts of North Carolina Wills 1663-1760" probably because the originals of the ten were never sent to the Secretary of State as required by law. In fact, over 60 more Beaufort County Wills dated 1720 to 1760 were retained in the courthouse and later copied into the Old Will Book and thus they also do not appear in Grimes' volume. Only a few of the Wills proved before 1700 have survived in the records identified in the NC State Archives as "Secretary Of State Wills". A majority of the North Carolina counties have transferred all or part of their surviving original wills to the State Archives, however, some counties did not do that and have kept all or part of them, and looking and researching is the only way to determine which county did what or has what, or which have nothing at all on file. There is no one and no place you can go to, to find out what is where. And by the way, Good luck on finding any of them. The only way to be certain though, is to go look for yourself, and for that, you need about 20 years and more than a million dollars for motels, food and etc..

So, just finding out where documents may be located takes an unbelievable amount of time and even if you find where they may be, they still may either be buried somewhere in the county records but no one knows where, may not exist at all, or are physically located in some other unknown counties, places, boxes, or categories. Additionally, to add to the Mess, the Bedsoles until about 1950, went by all kinds of surnames such as Betsol, Bletsoul, Batsoal and etc. On top of that, way too many of them went by nicknames and/or middle names all of which were major and time-consuming problems. In addition, there were many with identical whole names, living at the same times and places. Good luck at deciding which one you are looking at, at any given instance. At this point, the vast majority of such older documents no longer exist at all because they were burned when their respective courthouses went up in flames, and those that do exist, may be stored helter-skelter in boxes upon boxes of records in dark courthouse basements, in no kind of order and with no one there, who knows anything about what is where. All that is what I was up against in 1950 and did not find it out until I had done many years of very difficult and frustrating work, and all that is what you will be up against if you decide to research anything for your selves.

There has been major loss of both recorded and original wills, land records, and etc. from fires, wars, and natural disasters, but by far most of all, carelessness. All those problems contributed to the fact that I could find next to nothing on any Bedsole by any name, until 1719, when one then two, then three of them appeared in Russell and Spotsylvania counties in Virginia, on land records, as Bledsoes. All that should give you a very vague idea what you will be up against in Bath County, much less all the other counties in NC and other states and counties where the Bedsoles moved to and lived, when you try to either prove me wrong, or if you simply want to add to, clarify, or expand on what I have said or found. We won't even talk about what you will not find in Germany, as you will learn by reading everything I have written about that below.

Country Of Origin For Bedsole, (Betzold) Is The Brandenburg Province Of Germany

According to its history, Prussia was a region in central europe, extending from the southeastern coast of the Baltic Sea to the Masurian Lake District. Today its land makes up parts of Russia, Germany, Poland and Lithuania. The Vikings inhabited parts of Prussia at one time. Historical books record Prussians as early as the year 1072. Many attempts were made over the centuries, by various "Conquerers" to capture and occupy Prussia, without success. By Adalbert of Prague, Boleslaw of Prague, and various others during the years 997, 1015, 1147, 1161, and 1166. Prussia was finally conquered by the Teutonic Knights. In 1492, "The Life Of Dorothea Of Montau", became the first printed publication in Prussia. The whole country became the Kingdom Of Prussia in 1701. In 1871, during the creation of The German Empire and the Unification Of Germany, Prussia became part of Germany. But in accordance with the Potsdam Conference in 1945, following World War II, the Prussian region was divided between Russia and Poland. Consequently, the country of Prussia was dissolved and ceased to exist in 1947. This provides some historical background for understanding me when I tell you that the surname BEDSOLE, by any variations in spelling, originated in Prussia, not in Germany, Russia, Ireland, England and etc., as is claimed by a variety of superficial researchers of the Bedsole ancestors. The Kingdom Of Prussia, was a German Kingdom from 1701 to 1918, and from 1871 it was the leading state of the German Empire, occupying two-thirds of the lands of that Empire. The Prime Minister Of Prussia was also the German Chancellor. It is important to keep in mind that, with the constant splitting-up of Prussia, and its final elimination as a country, there are no meaningful written records to research. However, I can tell you that those few Prussian records I did come across, as in the History Of Germany, I found the same time-consuming research problems with misspellings of surnames as I did in Germany and in the U.S. In addition, very cute problems like this; When Prussia became part of Germany, some parts were not included, the names of towns have been changed half a dozen times, geographical landmarks disappeared, and were replaced with new ones, and etc., And I did not want to become bogged down with that. I needed to find Betzold or some misspelling of it in Germany and I did not find a version of it in the few documents I did find of Prussian origin. So for our purposes, suffice it to say that "Bedsole originated in Prussia, which became Germany, so lets concentrate on Germany and the U.S. area", where they initially arrived.

I believed my Dad when he said the first Bedsole came here from Germany. It turned out he was absolutely correct. For years and years, I tried my best to prove him wrong, because I didn't want them to be from Germany, but the more I tried to do that, the more I proved him right. Then, in the London, England
Genealogy Library, I obtained a copy of the Certificate For Country Of Origin for Bedsole. It states that Germany is the country of origin. Actually its Prussia, but why quibble when at least most of Prussia became Germany ?. I flew to Germany twice to research the Betzold name. First, in 1993 and again in 1994, to see for myself. Parts of Germany were called Prussia and Allemandia and perhaps other things prior to becoming Germany and without proof, we must assume the Bedsole name actually originated some time prior to "Germany". I received the following from cousin Charles Bedsole, an attorney in Dallas, Texas, who kindly gave his permission to include it in this book. What Charles says is very interesting and quite true. In addition, it shows that our roots are in Germany and I'm sorry to say that, because I do not admire Germany for the Holocaust, among other things. This is what Charles said in response to my question about whether "Bedsole" and "Bledsoe" could be related; "One thing I find interesting is the early date of the Bletsoe name in the year 1086 (That really is 1086) in England. According to some of the first English Court Cases, apparently a community named "Bledsoe" was there before William the Conqueror brought his army from Normandy; and, if so, it would make Bletsoe an Anglo-Saxon community. Further, if it was Anglo-Saxon, that would give Bletsoe a German connection because the Angles and the Saxons both emigrated to England from Germany. It was the Angles in fact, who gave us the name "England" ("Angle Land" was over time, shortened to England). The Anglo-Saxon folks were Germanic, while the people that emigrated when William conquered England were former Vikings from Scandinavia who had settled in France. They were initially called "Norse Men" (Northmen) and the area of France where they settled became "Normandy" (the land of the Northmen). However, being from Scandinavia, they spoke a version of German and were out of the same tree as the Germanic tribes who settled in what became modern day Germany (previously "Allemandia"). The Bletsoe family name, in theory, could have been an Anglicanization of an earlier Germanic name, e.g., Bletzold or Betzold". Many thanks to Charles for that information. At this point I won't even try to define the relationship of Bedsole and Bledsoe, further than that. But I do define it near the end of this book. In the same email, Charles was kind enough to send me the internet address of the first English court records. In reviewing several of those cases, I came across one wherein Elizabeth Bletsoe was a witness in a rape trial, dated in the year 1061, in England. I also noted that she lived in a "Bledsoe Community". The surname Bledsoe, although claimed by the Bledsoe researchers, to have originated in England, actually originated in the same place as Bedsole did, and as noted elsewhere, at some time in the past, there is no doubt in my mind that we, the Bedsoles, Bedsauls and Bledsoes, et al, all share a common ancestor at some time and place in the past. That place is most likely to have been Prussia. In researching your family name, you learn to arrive at conclusions, based on several factors. As the old saying goes, "If it walks like a duck, quacks like a duck, looks and acts like a duck, then its most likely a duck". Similarly in looking for the Bedssoles prior to 1950 or so, and you find a man with the name, if the man had roughly the right name, was at the right place, was there at the right time, and had certain relatives and/or dates, then its most likely him. In genealogical research, especially in the time prior to 1900 in the U.S., the most likely method becomes a method of proof, in the total absence of any documentation. As I said elsewhere, the accuracy of the Bedsole List, in Part Two, much of which was and is, based on Most Likely, has been proven time and time again to be amazingly accurate, with few exceptions. That may surprise you, but knowing how I made determinations from all the research that went into it, its accuracy does not surprise me at all. However, I hasten to add that accurately determining who is kin to whom and how they are kin, without birth, marriage, death, and other records, no one to ask anything about it, and doing it 300 years later, is definitely not easy.

In Germany, the Brandenburg district was Prussian land. It is from that district that the Betzolds seemed to originate. Germany is divided into States (Länder). These states are subdivided into Landkreise or Rural districts, which are made up of municipalities (Gemeinden) and Kreisfreie Städte, or free urban districts. In some states municipalities are combined into Ämter and Grossgemeinden (larger bodies, but the individual municipalities still exist).

Arrival Of The First Bedsole
The first Bedsole into the U.S. arrived by ship from Germany, at the settlement of Bath, NC, on September 11, 1700. He was listed by the ships captain William Barrow, as; “Abraham Bessow....a Pal”. The abbreviation "Pal" at that time meant Palatine from Germany. The name the captain listed was his version of what the reply was, from "Abraham", when asked his name. In reality, the reply was more likely something like "Abramz Betzoldh". They most likely spoke no english and the English captain most likely spoke no German and those few handwritten words on that scrap of paper, are the only thing we have to go by, take it or leave it. I take "Bessow" to have sounded like Bess-oh to the Captain, and Germans do pronounce Betzold like we pronounce Bedsole. Therefore, I take "Bessow" to mean Betzold, or Bedsole. Obviously, he was given his first name by Captain Barrow. As it turned out, I found "Abrahams" name over the ensuing 30 or so years following that landing at Bath, spelled as Abraham Batson, Betson, Betsel, Bedsoe, Bedsale, Betso, Bledsoe, Bedsoal, and Bedsowl. When you see that name spelled so many different ways, you must determine if thats the same man, or an entirely different one without any proof whatsoever, and that is true no matter what name you are researching. I assume his last name was Betzold, but we will never know what his real first name really was. I also know that it was very common for all ships captains back then, to bestow english names on non-english immigrants as they pleased, with the knowledge that no one would ever be the wiser. They had no one to file the passenger list with anyway. It was pure, blind luck that I found the tiny piece of paper with 4 or 5 names on it, including Abrahams, in the first place. Also, that I found his name arriving at Bath again, about 8 months later, on May 1, 1701. That time however, he was dubbed "Abraham Batson". Another common misspelling of Bedsole. However, despite all that, I stayed with my belief that he was a Bedsole, and traced it as described in this book. Then, I traced it backwards too. It still led me to "Abraham Bessow". So, its most likely true that he really was our first ancestor in this country. When Abraham and his sons William and Isaac acquired land in Virginia (1719-1726), the clerk there listed their last names as Bledsoe, he being certain that the english name Bledsoe, was really their last name, and they being unable to read, write, or spell, or to speak english. However, that allowed the Bledsoe researchers to also claim that all 3 were actually Bledsoes, and were their own ancestors from England. Therefore, without documented proof, therein lies an endless argument between them and us.

I flew to Germany, England and Ireland in 1993 and again in 1994, I tried to research Bledsoe and Bedsaul along with Bedsole, because of the similarities in spelling. As the names Bedsole, Bledsoe and Bedsaul are misspelled in their early english spellings in this country, they also suffered the same fate in Germany, England and Ireland, as there are various misspellings of them over there to the point you don't know which name you are looking at or if it is correct and which misspelling of the name(s) it is actually related to. In other words, you can't be certain the "Betzold" you are looking at is actually a Betzold or a Betzall, Betzaul, or really a Bletzoe, along with all the misspellings, such as Blettzo, Bettzel, and etc. Running into those problems caused me to forget those spellings, because the Translators I had hired at $100 per hour each, were rapidly bankrupting me. However, I did satisfy myself that Bedsole absolutely did not originate in Ireland and other countries as some amateur researchers so wildly claim.

I found nothing really new in Germany, because so much of its record systems had been destroyed in all the fires from the wars that country has been involved in, together with the mad-house absorption of Prussia into Germany. But the real problem is the huge prohibitive expense involved in German-to-English Translators at $100 to $200 per hour (Translators from Old German to New German had to be employed first, then from New German to English). However, I did look up, meet and talk to several Betzold descendants, including a Wilhelm Heinrich Betzold (William Henry Bedsole), who had in his storeroom, an original 1650 Betzold Coat Of Arms which I drew by hand, and a copy of which you see at the beginning of this book. It is important that you understand that anyone back in the old days of Heraldry, could register any number of coats of arms for any surname. It was the design, and not the surname, which was not allowed to be duplicated. Therefore, there could be any number of BEDSOLE coats of arms. The "Official" coat of arms for a surname however, is described in great detail on the Certificate For Country Of Origin for that surname. I have the certificate for Bedsole and the coat is described, but I dislike the design and colors of that one immensely. So I do not claim the "Official" Coat. Instead, I claim the one you see at the top of this document and on the Bedsole internet site at; www.thebedsoles.com

Nevertheless, I am certain there is a common ancestor for Bedsaul, Bledsoe, Bedsole and variations and misspellings, somewhere in the past. I know that the evidence that there is or is not such an ancestor, does not exist in the United States. I believe such an ancestor did exist most likely in Prussia. Anyway, back beyond Germany as we know it, there is no paper trail. Therefore, conjecture becomes meaningless. So, after only 3 weeks in Germany, my total costs had exceeded $25,000, so I left. What I did learn was, if you hire a translator, have your info ready so you are not paying them by the hour to find stuff for you, and to pick out that info you want translated. That takes so much time it will quickly bankrupt a very rich man.

In addition to all that, to find out anything about passenger shipping records from Germany, England or Ireland, from as far back as I could find information up to about 1800, the period I was most interested in, one needs to know at least the following: The exact names of passenger(s) as listed on ships records, keeping in mind that Scribes at the time wrote and spelled the names the best they could guess from what was said, because people in general could neither read nor write, much less spell. Names of the ships they sailed on (many ships had the same name), the owner(s) of the ships, the country of the ships registry. Do you have any idea how long that alone would take and how much you would spend, finding that out, if you could find it at all?. You also need to know the date of departure, port of departure, passengers destinations, ports of arrival, dates of arrival and etc. As if all that were not bad enough, prior to 1900, Germany had thousands upon thousands of its citizens who supposedly shipped to the United States, and via England. So shipping records in Germany would show their destination to be England. Then you have to go to England, and hope you can find all the above shipping information from there to the U.S. Naturally, thousands of those you would be interested in, stayed in England, thousands more changed their minds in England, and went back to Germany, and more of them went to countries other than the U.S. or England, having left from Germany and/or from England on different ships with various names, from various ports, on various dates and with various people accompanying them. In other words, they could have gone instead to any country.

My conclusion is this; If you already possess all that shipping information, you don't need to go over there to find it out. But if you do decide to, therein are another million research problems, requiring thousands upon hundreds of thousands of dollars and who knows how many years, to research. Another overseas research problem is this; Many Germans moving to this country, first shipped to England on english and/or german ships. In England, they were often kept several weeks in "Holding pens", until a full shipload was available, then they boarded english and/or german ships for the trip to this country. Several ships sunk enroute, drowning all aboard, many became disabled and put into the nearest port, where passengers were left to fend for themselves, and I have included an article of a court case regarding that fact. So be forewarned if you want to go overseas and trace our ancestors.

In our own National Archives, for the Bedsoles, even for immigration records, there is nothing in the way of passenger lists prior to about 1880-90, which was very surprising. Upon his last arrival in this country, on May 1, 1701, our Abraham was accompanied by his wife "Rose" and young daughter, "Elizabeth". Note that all three were given English and not German names, which is the result of the writer at the time being english, and the immigrants being German, who could speak no english.

Knowing all that now, does it mean you should bow down and be forever grateful to me? ....YOU BET! ......YES, INDEED!!.

In the earliest days, prior to 1900, ships captains were not required to keep lists of passengers, much less Turn them in to someone. Back then, people went by the name the Scribe at the time, wrote for them, until another Scribe misspelled it another way. So, Captain Barrow simply wrote "Abraham", instead of his true first name, which may have been Zjuxandyerjzunst, with no English version. Anyway, until I came across Abraham, I had never found any Bedsole in this country, misspelled or not, prior to 1730. In late 2007, I had found William Bedsole who was born about 1727, and who turned out to be a son of "Abraham". William ended up in Virginia as William Bledsoe, on land records.

The Lack Of Documentation

Records of births were not even required here until about 1912 and marriage, death, and land records were frequently thrown away, or deliberately burned along with their respective courthouses, if a courthouse existed at the time. The Bladen County Courthouse in Elizabethtown, N.C, for example, where many early Bedsoles lived, was intentionally burned down 5 times between 1750 and 1893. In 1850 in desperation, the Court Clerk, took the records home with him for safekeeping, but his house was burned down and again, so were the records he tried to save. Apparently, the primary intent of the Arsonist(s) was to get rid of legal records in order to avoid lawsuits for various crimes, not the least of which were for theft, rustling, murder, illegal land dealings, abandonment of family, sharecropper and landlord problems and so forth. As for marriage records, for the earliest Bedsole’s, getting married only required the couple to say their "Banns" three times in church. That is, they repeated that they accepted each other as husband and wife. Most church records disappeared over the years, as their pastors simply left, or died. Therefore, older records of marriages, births, deaths, wills, and etc. for Bedsoles are practically non-existent, prior to 1850. That leaves land records, which provide precious little information to a researcher, with zero information about the landowners spouse(s) or children. In addition, the majority of those made no distinction between a Senior, Junior, Second, Third, or anything else, and with people naming their children after themselves, their brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles, parents, grandparents, and etc., you cannot determine with precision, exactly which persons land record you are looking at, when those with the same name, either both or all, lived at the same time and usually in the same place, at the same time. In addition, determining kinships and relationships were another frustrating and time-consuming problem, which you will find in Part Two of this book.

Following the burning of courthouses back then, those landowners and others who had kept some kind of records, could take them back to the new courthouse and have them re-recorded. However, some did not do that. Consequently, many records were never recorded in counties or at capitols of some states, in the first place. In addition, for those courthouses which were repeatedly burned down, even when some records were re-recorded, they were repeatedly destroyed and over time, fewer and fewer such records survived, and fewer and fewer were recorded at state offices. Additionally, the creation of several other counties from parts of one or more original counties, only added to the confusion and loss of vital records.

The USGENWEB site has a continuing effort and program, to transcribe census data and place it on the internet, so perhaps that and other data will become more available in the future, provided enough dedicated volunteers can be found to do all that hard work. That means though, that the data must first be located which I am willing to bet, never happens.

The absence, especially of land records, compels me to conclude that, although land to them was cheap, even free from the government, the vast majority of Bedsoles until about 1950, were share-croppers and agricultural workers. That is, they worked primarily for other, more affluent landowners and that was one of the major reasons so few land records for them were ever found. They never existed in the first place. Those that did are few and far between.

As I studied the movements of the early Bedsoles in NC (1700-1850), I could see that they moved from Bath, to Dobbs, Bertie, Edgecombe, Duplin, Bladen, Johnston, Sampson and finally to Brunswick counties in NC, indicating a steady fan-shaped movement south and southwestward from Bath, now Beaufort, County. Ending at Brunswick County, near the state line with South Carolina, the fan-shaped movement is a familiar and predictive one when you are reviewing first settlements of new places. Reading about NC in general and Bath County in particular, I found that repeated Yellow Fever epidemics and fierce, barbaric, antagonistic and warlike Indian tribes in and around NC and especially Bath back then, were also good reasons for these early arrivals to move and to move frequently.

As you will see, documentation on Abraham, Elizabeth and Rose, ceased to exist after their arrival at Bath in May, 1701 and their arrival in Virginia in 1719-1726. Abraham and Rose's son William appeared on paper in Russell County, Virginia in the form of a handwritten land deed in 1719. Abraham and William both appeared the next time, in Spotsylvania County, Virginia in 1726, on a land record for 1,000 acres. Their last names were written on those land records as Bledsoe. The logical reason for that is that all record-keepers were English, and they wrote and spelled names they were familiar with, and since Bledsoe was in England as far back as the year 1061, they were very familiar with that spelling and freely assigned that spelling on anyone pronouncing their name even remotely like "Bledsoe" or "Bedsole". In Virginia, the trail became very muddled, with the appearance of several apparently bonified Bledsoe's, who became mixed with bonafide Bedsoles. Then, due to English Scribes, their last names were freely interchanged among them all.

After that, the efforts to keep track and definition of the bonified Bedsole's and the bonified Bledsoe's required quadrupling of time, efforts, research, study and analyses. All that required quadrupling again, after they all had sons whom they named after themselves, each other, uncles, parents and grandparents. It all became a royal mess, keeping track of who was whom. Through extensive use of the "Most Likely" research method, I did decide who was whom, as related to Abraham, at least to a point.

THE CONFUSION OF BEDSOLE AND BLEDSOE SURNAMES

From the start, to current times, the North Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Louisiana and Texas Census data repeatedly show Bledsoe's and Bedsole's living among each other and when one moved, the others either went with them, or shortly afterwards, to the same place. That indicates to me that most, or at least many, Bedsoles and Bledsoes were either related or were freely using each others last name(s), or both. Of course, the spelling of names was always left up to the discretion, knowledge and ability of the Scribe at the time. If someone told the Scribe their last name was Bedsole, there's no doubt in my mind that the Scribe, being English, decided many times that they were actually Bledsoe's and not Bedsole's, and spelled it as Bledsoe. A very major problem caused by all that uncertainty, was the inability to determine with any degree of certainty in most cases, if the "Bedsole" being researched was really a Bedsole or Bledsoe. And that is something which one must frequently decide without much or any, additional information.

So for example, when a "John Bedsole" is listed on the 1790 Census' for Wake, Cumberland and Anson counties. It is likely that one of those Johns was the one born about 1730 and the other is the one born in 1753. Or one or more Johns moved during the Census counts or, that third John is either the same guy counted twice, or there was a John Jr. or Sr. in one or more, of those counties. It is also possible that they counted John Bledsoe in one and John Bedsole in the other, misspelling Bedsole or Bledsoe, or both. After all, how would Census Takers determine the various county boundaries, as they roamed the country side? From studying all this and everything else I've come across, it makes me think that the early, and consequently many current, Bedsoles and Bledsoes are intermixed to the point of impossibility in defining them, with any degree of certainty, beyond ones best guess and, some Bedsoles assumed the Bledsoe name and vice-versa, for various reasons. Currently, there is a separate line of Bledsoes, another of Bedsauls and one for Bedsoles. That separate line is further strengthened by the fact that many earlier Bledsoe's eventually moved to Indiana, but the Bedsole's moved from NC to either Tennessee, or southward. The Bedsole's initially moved almost simultaneously, from North Carolina to Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Texas and Georgia. Despite that separation, some with the Bledsoe name or spelling are also in those same southern states at the same time as the Bedsoles, a big problem is, there's no way to know which of those in the north or south were born as Bledsoes and which were born as Bedsoles, and worse, even when born, they may not have actually been a Bedsole or Bledsoe to begin with. It gets incredibly confusing, when you are trying to figure out who is whom, 300 years later, with no one to ask for clarification and, as in my own case, those you contact will not provide the answers.

When a Scribe back then showed up at some Bedsoles house, after 15-20 years, for whatever purpose, selling something, land transfers, trades, census, legal problems, whatever, who knows what our ancestors answered when asked for their last names and ages. On top of that, who knows what was written, after he heard their answer, trying to spell it like it sounded, when the Scribe was English and the person answering was German, who spoke no English. For example, the Scribe somehow asks "What is your name?". The answer the best he can understand it is like this: "Vilhelm Bahssow, Bessow, Bhatson, Blitsuh, zumzing like zatt". Scribe: "Do you know how to spell it" Answer: "Nein, nein sprechen sie englischen". So what do you think the Scribe wrote for the persons name ?. Now, 300 years later, along comes J.D. Bedsole, trying to figure out not only who all these people were, but how they were all related, where they lived and when, with no one to ask, and all he has to look at to figure all that out is what that Scribe wrote that day and nothing else, in too many cases.

How Abraham "Bessow" Got Here

The first Bedsole in this country was "Abraham Bessow", who was born about 1673 in Germany and died about 1740 in Virginia. Although I know his German name was not Abraham nor Bessow, I'll use that without knowing what it really was, and explain why further on. I believe that in Germany, the Betzold family were farm laborers who worked on farms and in grape vineyards. Agricultural workers. They were probably desperately poor and lived in mud-brick huts. Abraham, his parents and siblings wore wornout and patched homemade clothes and all of them usually went without shoes, the father being far too poor to acquire shoes for himself or his family.

Abraham had heard wonderous stories about a "New Land", the future United States, being advertised by the government of England. It was described as "beautiful and a land of plenty". Over a period of many months, they also heard that the English government was giving free and cheap land to any and all who went there to settle and to live out their lives. Little did he, or anyone else yearning to go, suspect that the English merely wanted the settlers to go, clear off and farm the land and start producing goods needed by England, such as tobacco, cotton and tar so they could receive these products and also coincidentally, tax such settlers, thereby fattening their own governments coffers.

Then it was made known that the English government would also allow such settlers to leave the new land to their children as entitlements from the parents, when the parents died. I'm sure it seemed too good to be true and Abraham began to dream of the new land and to make plans to go there to live. His parents encouraged him, but also warned that it would not be easy, going to a new land with practically nothing except the clothes on his back, to travel and live among total strangers, with so many inherent dangers and unknowns involved, and the inhuman hardships and suffering that were bound to be incurred. He never dreamed how the suffering and hardships would be proved without question and many times over. So, true to his German ancestry he was stubborn, and one day in 1700, he said goodbye to his family and together with a friend his own age, began the trek to look for some way to catch a boat to the big seaport and to leave for the new country.

Abraham and his friend probably found a small commercial boat working a river and convinced the owner to transport them downstream to the seagoing port in return for a week of manual labor helping the owner load and unload trade goods with which he bartered, bought, sold and made a living on the river. At the seaport, when their fare was finally paid, they were on their way. At that time, the captains of the large, seagoing ships had learned they could transport new settlers to what later became America and collect their fares upon arrival, from earlier and richer settlers who needed laborers here. (During the period 1700-1712, there was a huge influx of Palatines from Germany into the U.S).

Note: Sailing From Germany To "The New Country" A Typical Trip To America Went Like This Too Often:.From An Old English Admiralty Court Case I included this to show how they were mistreated back then.

James Hogg's brother settled in Wilmington, N.C. many years ago and at his solicitation James decided to also go settle there. When this was learned in Caithness, many people applied to Hogg to freight a vessel to carry them all to "The Carolina's". Accordingly, on 24, Aug., 1773, Hogg contracted with Inglis to freight the ship, Batchelor of Leith, Ramage Alexander, Master, to carry James Hogg of Borland in Caithness, his family and servants, and 200 emigrants from Thurso to Wilmington, N. C. Hogg agreed to pay for himself, wife, Mrs. Alves (his mother-in-law) a specified rate, another for his children, a third for his servants (the latter being restricted to six in number), a fourth for emigrants above the age of eight, and a fifth for emigrants under the age of eight (excepting children at the breast for whom there was no fare).

The vessel was to be ready to depart Leith, England in July and was to proceed from Leith to Thurso Bay on Scrabster Road to load the passengers. Hogg arrived in Leith on June 15th and hung on until August 26, waiting for a full load of passengers. The vessel Batchelor then went to Thurso and was boarded by Hogg and his family and servants, and 204 emigrants (many from the County of Sutherland). They sailed two months behind schedule, from Thurso on Sept. 14, but they were soon forced to harbor from contrary winds at Stromness in Orkney, where they put the passengers ashore for eight days. On October 3, two days after leaving Stromness, due to storm damage to the ship, they were obliged to put into Vaila Sound in Shetland where the passengers were again put ashore. Here the Batchelor was again damaged by a storm from which they were sheltering. Hogg, his family, and the 204 emigrants wintered at Vaila Sound. The following Spring, April 20, 1774, eight months after departing initially boarding, they departed for Leith in order for the ship to have the necessary repairs made. At Leith, Inglis declared the contract at an end and declared he was entitled to the fares upon landing them at Leith as he would have been had he landed them at Wilmington, NC. The vessel lay without repairs, and on 28 May, Hogg entered a protest against Inglis. Many of the children of the emigrants, Hogg claims, died during their winter of hardships in Shetland. Now, he says, the emigrants have been turned ashore in Leith, 200 miles from home, and many of them with no means of returning home or of procuring another vessel to carry them to America. Imagine being one of those passengers with a spouse and 5 children and no money, or anything else for that matter.

In Admiralty Court, James Inglis alleged damage by stress of weather prevented him from continuing on a voyage with emigrants, and suggested that the commencement of this action by Hogg has terminated their contract. He also stated that he had no concern whatever with the emigrants nor were they party-contractors to him; that his contract with Hogg was for freight of a certain number of emigrants who were to board his vessel as passengers to America, but that he had no concern with how they were to be employed, where taken in America, and so forth; that to him the passengers stood in the same relationship as goods or common freight. Inglis alleges that the real dispute is between Hogg and the emigrants. Hogg and his family took another vessel sailing from Port of Greenock, but the other poor emigrants dispersed, some to seek their way home, and others to endeavour to gain their bread in the low country, and some of them attempted to procure their passage from Greenock.

Generally, some emigrants died during the voyage before their arrival in Shetland and others died after the vessel was stranded. (There are 32 pages just about that) In the instant case, Inglis alleged that he had advised Hogg from the beginning that the vessel Batchelor, then on a voyage to Memel (modern Klaipeda in Lithuania), could not be ready early, for the voyage to N.C. He says that the date the vessel sailed was in fact a good season to set out for North Carolina. He denied that public spirit motivated Hogg to arrange for emigration of upward of 200 Scots, and suggested that Hogg's brother had purchased 12,000 acres of land and wanted settlers for it. He said Hogg had been discussing "these questions himself in newspapers and periodical publications." He also Alleged that 2/3 of the emigrants stayed aboard the vessel at Stromness and were provisioned by the master of the Batchelor. He further said that the emigrants angrily advanced against Hogg and Captain Ramage in the Vice-Admiralty Court of Shetland, and quoted from Hogg's defense there, in which Hogg refers back to a 1772 emigration from Sutherland that lay two weeks at Stromness without being provisioned from the ship's stores.

He said ships with emigrants had only 9 or 10 weeks provisions, and says that several of the passengers aboard the Batchelor saw at Stromness from Capt. Ritchie and Capt. Smith's ships that that was the case. He stated that deaths of several passengers came from small-pox and not neglect. He said he instructed Captain Ramage on January 1, 1774 to return the emigrants to their home, but that they refused "to a man" to disembark at Thurso; that he tried to assist the emigrants at Leith, "but cannot help mentioning that they are in general so indolent they do not care to work if they can get a subsistence by any other means". (Sounds like that attitude continued on for way too many years, to this day, in the U.S. ) He contended that Hogg, by taking ship for America from Greenock, had abandoned prosecution of the action.

All that is just one example of the horrible hardships and treatments of our early ancestors who came here.

Abrahams Trip From Germany

Now, back to our ancestor, Abraham; So, the ten or eleven-week trip across the ocean to what later became Bath, North Carolina began in Germany, on a cold day about the first of July, 1700. The ship was English, made of wood and powered by sails. It was one hundred two feet long, twenty-five feet wide and twenty feet deep and the cracks between its many wooden planks were sealed with tar and tar-soaked twine. It was a miracle it could even survive such a hazardous trip without falling apart, considering the beating it was certain to incur from the constantly heaving, frothing, rushing and thrashing water of the open ocean for such a long period of time. For this trip, it carried a passenger load of 106 settlers and a crew of twelve men.

Think of it; 118 Men, women and children on a vessel that small for ten to twelve weeks or longer under such conditions; With almost all passengers being sick and some even dying during the trip, no toilet facilities except for buckets tied to ropes, no privacy and no provisions for taking a bath except for buckets of salt water dipped from the ocean. These were accepted hardships and baths were generally ignored. These ships were also loaded with trade goods, fresh water which always became stagnant after only a few days, food, a few medical supplies, and the few pitiful household goods of the passengers.
Many times the ships captains would steal the best baggage carried by the passengers and sell it or load it onto a different ship for a price, with the settlers pitiful belongings never seen again by the owners. Their baggage usually contained dried fruit, butter which turned into a mess during these sailings, other foodstuffs, clothes, tools and money which they had planned to use to live, eat, pay for their fare and for supplies upon reaching their destination. They were not aware that their pitifully small amounts of money would be next to useless in the “New Land”, because “Trade” was the most prevalent “money” in this country at that time. The fare for the poorer passengers was guaranteed by the more affluent settlers already in the New Land, and who were in great need of laborers and who would pay the Captain upon arrival in what was called "The Bath Settlement" which later became Bath, NC, in this case.

Aboard ship, the passengers were crammed into very tight quarters. At first, they sat on the top deck sitting on lashed-down household goods, boxes and bags of cargo, and personal belongings, as they grew tired, sleepy and hungry, they wandered all over the ship, both above and below decks. Being powered by sails, such ships usually found themselves becalmed for several days and nights during these trips. Because such sitting and waiting for the wind to blow may last for two days at a time. That was a total nightmare always waiting to happen and too often it did.

Twenty five cannons were also lashed on deck, by the ships crew. They were needed to fight off any Spanish ships they were liable to encounter on the trip in view of the fact that Spain and England were at odds at that time. Leaving port, the ship was heavily loaded, and with its sails full of wind, it slowly headed out into the open ocean.

The next morning about two a.m., no surprise to the crew of course, they awoke to find the ship groaning, cracking, popping and creaking as it heaved, tossed, pitched, rolled and yawed from side to side wildly, with loud crashing sounds, in the opening round of its long battle with the heaving, frothing ocean. By the end of the first day and with the exception of the experienced crew, all aboard were already deathly seasick and were lying below and above decks. They vomited until they were just heaving, but with nothing coming up. They were already pale in color and listless. Most of the adults were already having second thoughts about making this trip. But they were all committed now, as the ship thrashed slowly along gaining foot by foot, in its beginning fight for and against, the wind. This was a life or death fight they, and the ship faced. As they plodded along day after day, the hapless passengers did their best to deal with the never-ending heaving, pitching, rolling and yawing of the ship. The front end would point skyward as it climbed wave after wave, then dive down the other side, until the bow was terrifyingly underwater, then it would rear up again, pointing skyward, as thousands of gallons of salt water rushed across the decks from front to rear, sometimes injuring some of the more foolish passengers who ventured out on the heaving deck, by slamming them against the rigging, freight, cabin and bulwarks of the ship.

Practically all the women and children spent most of their time below deck with the women tending to the constantly sick children, who would vomit as soon as they ate anything at all. Many of them were running a fever, from drinking the already-stagnant, untreated and contaminated fresh water onboard. They, and many of the adults were lying and sitting, staring listlessly, in a brew of vomit and human excrement in the ships hold, for days. Some for weeks. The ships captain and crew advised the passengers to eat only rice, or bread, but no meat or anything greasy for the first 3 days or more. Of course, the passengers had no desire whatsoever for anything greasy and the mere thought sent most running for the “slop jars” used as commodes and toilets by all on board. These usually rolled and fell over, emptying their odorous mixture into the hold and on the flooring and all over any nearby passengers and their clothing. The stench below deck was indescribable.
With no way to treat the passengers, everyone on board watched helplessly as child after child and adult after adult slowly died, over the next 10 weeks. With no other choice in what to do with the dead bodies, they were simply dumped overboard and left at sea. The suffering, sorrow and heart-wrenching, gut-twisting anguish, of those who had to do that with the bodies of their dead relatives, children and spouses, can only be imagined, as they watched the bodies bobbing and floating slowly away with the waves.

six weeks went by and several of the adults were now dead. Some of those were husbands, traveling with their families, leaving their hapless wives and children on their own in the middle of the ocean, among strangers, headed for a totally unknown land and the terrifying, unknown, unplanned, and as proved later, disastrous consequences which awaited them.

So it was, that this nightmareish trip finally ended near the end of the eleventh week at sea, when the ships Lookout yelled from the “Crows Nest” that he had spotted land. At this news, the passengers who were still able to move, rushed to the side of the ship to look, with the joyful thought that this total nightmare was about to end. Little did they know their nightmare was only just beginning. The ship approached land cautiously, the captain not being certain of the exact layout of the body of land the Lookout had spotted. Searching for the mouth of the Pamlico River and a fort with more than a hundred earlier settlers already there at Bath, NC, was not easy, with no navigational methods, except intuition and memory. He ordered the crew to lower sails and drop anchor, to allow an exploratory party on a dinghy to paddle closer in to the shallower water and get a look at the land. Suddenly, from around a finger of land, sailing towards the English ship, was a Spanish Man-O-War ship, bristling with deck cannons. Upon seeing the English ship, the Spanish commander, ordered his crew to lower sails, come to a halt and drop anchor, perhaps 2,000 feet away, and then dispatched two row boats to the English ship for boarding and investigation.

However, the English ship’s captain indicated his ship was English, in free waters, and not subject to any authority of the Spanish king, and ordered his crew to fire on the Spanish ship with two of the deck cannons. The two shots missed. The fire was answered almost instantly, with a volley from the Spanish ship, with one of the shells striking the main mast of the English ship, causing it to drop to the deck, killing three of the settlers and injuring 3 others, who had gathered to watch the confrontation. Working desperately to bring its cannons to bear amid all the tied-down household goods on deck, the English ship returned fire, but this time with five deck cannons. Two of its shells struck the Spanish ship almost amidship and severely damaged the vessel. With that, the Spanish captain waved the white flag, indicating surrender, but the English captain, not wanting to incur the problem of having to control the Spanish crew while trying to deliver the settlers to land, ordered a hasty departure from the area, picking up his exploratory boat and crewmen before doing so.

Continuing his slow search, for the mouth of the River, the ship finally approached the entrance and continued sailing up the river. They eventually approached a wooden fort, triangular in shape, measuring four hundred feet by four hundred feet by four hundred feet, constructed of logs set into the ground with sharpened tops pointing skyward and within which there were sixteen small, one-room log cabins with dirt floors.

At each of the 3 points on the forts triangular walls were guard and lookout towers for protection against marauding Indians who attacked them from time to time. Within the fort, there were perhaps seventy-five surviving settlers and outside its walls, the remainder, wildly cheering, shouting and waving a welcome to the ship and its newcomers, in the mistaken belief that the ship carried food, medicine and supplies for the forts current occupants. The captain ordered his crew to lower the sails and drop anchor, in six fathoms, thirty-six feet, of water, about 300 feet from shore.
The captain ordered the rowboat lowered and again three crewmen were sent ashore to determine a satisfactory anchorage location for the ship which would allow the passengers to unload. Shortly, the three men returned with the news that the anchorage was satisfactory where the ship had stopped and its passengers would have to be unloaded a few at a time, and carried ashore in the ships two small rowboats, because of shallower water near shore. Already with inadequate supplies, especially foodstuffs, these additional settlers just meant increased suffering and hardship for all concerned, for those already in the fort were desperately short of food and clean, fresh water. In addition, many among them were seriously sick, with nothing left in the way of medicine.

The paying passengers were unloaded first, with all their belongings. The ships Captain, knowing that there were some among those already on shore who had money furnished by The London Company, a private English business, and that they desperately needed able, manual laborers and helpers, offered the remaining passengers and their children to the highest bidder on shore, who would pay their fares.

Upon striking a bargain, the hapless victims of this auction, were required to sign a twelve-month contract, to perform free labor in return for the highest bidders payment, as the bidder should see fit. The “Sheriff” at the fort was also present to enforce the contracts. Families of men who had died or were killed during the overseas trip, were then offered to the highest bidder as “Servants”.

Most such families had to be separated and split up, because the winning Bidder could not provide and care for another family of a mother and children and his own too. Therefore, many families were thus destroyed at the fort, as those children and mothers were split up and assigned to several different bidders. The heartache of the mothers watching their children being divided up among different, unknown and unfamiliar families and as learned later, to have them leave the fort for parts unknown, never to be seen again by her or each other, must have been horrible.

Within the fort, life was a living hell. It was cold at the time and it rained just often enough to keep the grounds of the fort and the floors of the cabins in a swirl of nasty, sloppy, sticky mud almost knee deep from all the activity and people constantly moving about inside the fort. Over the next few weeks, sickness from the lack of adequate food and nourishment, contaminated water, exposure to the weather and contagious diseases, steadily decimated the population. Restful sleep was out of the question, due to the constant noise, sickness, misery, hunger, cold, Indian attacks and worry. With no medical care, these luckless people could only pray for their loved ones and themselves to get well, with no hope of a better life in the future.

By now, they all realized they were helplessly lost in the situation and that they had no choice but to go forward and hope for the best. As time went on, a few brave men ventured away from the fort and settlement, sometimes traveling a few miles and back, looking for a route to move their families southward so they could obtain their own land as they had heard could be done. They wanted desperately to get out of that hellish fort and start their own lives, for they considered it certain death to remain there. So, in early spring a few and sometimes several in a group would leave the fort and seek their own future.

Later, oxen, mules, carts and wagons would be available to travel, but at that time, walking was the only way to travel, so the trip they made, looking for their own land, and carrying all they owned on their backs was another long and difficult trial, having only animal and Indian trails to follow, which lead in the southerly direction desired. They traveled in daylight and camped at night, cautiously avoiding all contact with the Indians if at all possible. Many Indians were murderous and would kill any and all white people on sight, no questions asked. When Indian contact could not be avoided, all in the settlers groups, held their breaths, never knowing if they were about to be killed until it was too late for many. The settlers always tried first to trade their way out of any such confrontations, offering trinkets, beads, whatever they had brought for the purpose.

The Indians, having never seen such shiny things, treasured them very highly and such trades were frequently successful, allowing the settlers to proceed on their journey. As for our ancestor Abraham, he was destined to leave shortly. In his opinion to say that was good, was a gross understatement. After working for several months, he decided he liked the countryside there and he acquired some land as “Squatters Rights”, along with several other newcomers. His log house was attacked several times by Indians, mostly hunting parties of six to eight men, but he managed to get his flintlock rifle and fire a shot at them. A few times, he killed an Indian. But it was the noise that drove them away, for they didn’t know what else that noisy thing might be able to do. Perhaps wipe them all out. Several times, the Indians were drunk on whiskey which they had traded for at the fort and in such cases, were not as afraid of his gun.

Travel from place to place, county to county, state to state: Traveling with wagons full of their meager supplies, tools and household goods, all the men carried muskets, powder and shot and these weapons usually saved them from the Indians when a shot was fired. It terrified the indians even more when one or two of them were killed by these weapons, but it also made the Indians hate the settlers more and made them more murderous.

With two men going on ahead of the group to hunt deer and any other edible thing they could find along the planned trail, including trading with Indians, the group lived from day to day and traveled that way. When deer were found, the group could handle four or five, depending on the size of the deer, by dividing the meat to be carried among themselves. They had to eat the meat within two days, or it would begin to rot. They could have preserved it longer than that by smoking it, but that would have taken too much time. Also, the smoke and smell of the meat would sometimes attract Indians and dangerous wild animals such as bears and panthers.

Early spring squash, corn and other vegetables were traded and acquired from the Indians and from a few trading posts, along the trail. They also found wild turnips and polk bushes could be cooked like turnip greens and eaten, after boiling to remove most of its poisonous juices. Ironically, we owe a lot to the indians for helping our early settlers, to survive. During the trip, a few streams were flooded and many crossings were disastrous at best for the travelers, wagons, animals and supplies, even with the wagons loaded, they would easily half-float and just as easily overturn during any crossing attempt. Thus, they had to be kept upright by ropes tied to them and being stabilized on both sides by mules, horses, or oxen and riders, keeping the ropes tight. Sometimes people drowned while the wagons were attempting such crossings and overturned in the fast-flowing water. Small children and especially infants were in the greatest danger during these crossings and many of them and some adults also died in the process, being caught in, and under, all the freight and household goods on the wagons.

After 3 days of travel, the advance hunting party had killed six deer and hauled them to the trail along which the wagons would soon be traveling. While waiting for them, the hunters skinned and butchered the fresh meat and made it ready for consumption. Every day a couple of hours before dark, the travelers stopped the wagons and formed them in a protective circle. Some men set to work gathering feed for the oxen and mules and watering the animals, while others cut and stacked enough firewood for the night. Meanwhile, the women and older girls prepared places to sleep and cooked supper.
After supper, the men watered the animals again and secured them for the night by tying them with “pigging strings” which were wires or ropes strung between two trees, or “hobbles” which simply means tying the feet of the animals together, to prevent them walking or running off during the night. The hobbles also served as a hindrance to any Indians who tried to make off with the animals, because the animals could not walk, or even trot. Knowing that Indians might steal their livestock, the wagonmaster assigned two shifts of night guards for the camp and the livestock for the night. Finally, just before midnight, all people not working were asleep and the night sounds of crying babies, chirps of crickets and small animal sounds were all that could be heard.

A small fire was kept burning all night in order to scare away the bigger wild animals. During the night, the mosquitos buzzed incessantly around the heads and in the ears of those trying to sleep. Some nights it rained all night and everything stayed wet, making the travelers more miserable than would otherwise be the case. With muddy trails, mosquitos, snakes, cold weather, rain, sick children, overturning wagons, lack of trails to follow, indians and things staying wet, the increased pain, misery and suffering quickly became a way of life. On any typical day, everyone on the wagon train was up at 4 a.m. and immediately set to work, repeating the jobs they had done the night before; Feeding and watering the animals, and filling all the water barrels while the women prepared breakfast, usually consisting of hoecakes, fried meat and coffee for everybody. Then the children had to be cared for and fed.

After breakfast, everything had to be repacked, reloaded and lashed down on the wagons, the livestock had to be rounded up and kept together until the wagons began moving. The hunters went first. By the time the group was ready to go, most people were already tired from lack of sleep and from all the work that had been done at the beginning of the day. The night guards had most of the day to try for some sleep, but that was not easy on a loud, bumpy and very uncomfortable wagon. Finally, with the wagon train on the move, the loose livestock were a huge problem because of the little control the settlers were able to exercise over them. Keeping them on the trail of the wagons required constant chasing, steering and caring for them all day.

Along the way, they passed a few outposts and supply/trading posts which were built of logs and occupied usually by previous settlers who found living along the route to be a little easier by buying, selling and trading goods such as tools, weapons, animal hides and edibles from the Indians and other settlers, and the passing wagon trains. In the absence of money, the trade of goods was the prevalent way of doing business. These outposts also served as sources of information to all travelers concerning other settlers, indians, forts, and directions, but most importantly, they provided information on Indian troubles and trouble spots such as trees down, trail washouts, stream crossings, or landslides, or large trees across the trails ahead

HOW THEY LIVED

Upon arriving at a new destination, the travelers learned that the government would sell frontier land at a low cost per hundred acres, with the stipulation that the buyer would clear and plant 3 acres of the land every calendar year, for every hundred acres received, up to a limit of about 260 acres per family, depending upon the number of people in the family. Prior to the establishment of local land offices, no limits existed on acreage for new settlers.

From earlier settlers in the area, they learned that although the land was free, many of them worked as share-croppers, or at other work for various periods of time. Some worked as carpenters, wagon makers, “coopers” (barrel makers/carpenters), seamstresses, tailors, blacksmiths, shoe makers and so forth. But most worked as share-croppers and that means performing back-breaking, common labor, farming someone else’s land for them, for half of whatever is produced, after expenses are subtracted. The prevalent crops were corn, peanuts, tobacco, cotton, and tar or pitch, but with tobacco and cotton being the principal crops. However, The English government wanted lots of tar, which the settlers harvested from the abundant pine trees in the area. England would buy this production for a pittance, and take trade in payment too. In acquiring title to public land being transferred for the first time by the Government back then, the buyer received a “Patent”. But when transferring ownership of that same land after that, the new buyer would receive a “Deed”. Therefore, these first arrivals received Patents, sometimes referred to as “Grants”. But Grants were usually free land acquired from the government, for some service rendered. The acquisition of land, or a job, was the first step in a monstrous, lifetime work project for everyone concerned, for the land had to be cleared not only of trees, but also of their stumps and many large rocks.

Digging up and moving stumps is a hugely demanding job and I speak from personal experience. It takes two strong men about one hour of fast, hard work to expose all the roots of the stump of a mature tree. Once all the roots are cut loose from the main stump, there is almost always a very deep, long and large taproot, which grows straight downward from the base of the stump, meaning you cannot get at it to cut it because the stump and its upper roots cover it from above and it is so deep that much back-breaking digging with shovels, and chopping with axes is necessary. Once the stump has been cut loose however, a two-mule team was chained to it and if they were strong enough it could usually be pulled up. Then it would have to be dragged down into the swamp and left there, or stacked in the field to be burned after drying out for four or five weeks. One hour for one stump, when there are hundreds, usually thousands of them, meant a huge, back-breaking and time-consuming job which produced no food or any other benefit of any kind in the short term.

But, with shelter being the immediate need on a new tract of land, the settlers set about working in teams, first clearing their spots for log houses. Those rich and fortunate enough to own wagons were lucky, because crude Lean-to’s made of sapling trees were the first shelters for the less fortunate. Those with wagons could live for a time in the wagon and even expand its space by attaching a lean-to to it.

The location of their log houses was important and they were located as close as possible to a source of good drinking water, preferably a spring. Having to dig a forty or fifty foot-deep well, was a luxury which could be ill-afforded, when they didn’t even have a house to live in. They worked together to get the jobs done, handling the big, heavy logs, working on first one house, then the other, cutting the trees down, trimming them and dragging the resulting logs to the house site. The debarking and splitting of the logs and putting up the framework and then making hundreds of thousands of handmade wooden shingles for the roofs, took several weeks. Dirt floors sufficed at the time. Houses were crude and consisted of only one room. Wooden floors and porches were luxuries which would have to wait.

The clearing of land and construction of houses took several of the summer months and the settlers were hard-pressed to get the houses done and a supply of firewood cut for the 4 to 5 months of winter which lay just ahead of them, beginning in November. They also needed lots of animal hides, dried and cured, prepared for the winter, by the women and children. Teamwork among all concerned was an absolute necessity and meant the difference between life and death most of the time. Syrup and cornbread for breakfast, turnips or grease/gravy and cornbread for lunch/dinner and the same for supper, were their primary foods.

Meat was a rarity because of the small supply of gunpowder and shot, which were expensive and needed for protection from Indians which was a priority. That forced them to use traps for wild animals and meat. Meat was preserved by smoking it for a week or more, but that required a small smokehouse and lots of wood, then someone to attend to the smoking process. Vegetables were mostly non-existent most of that first summer season. At that time, they had no means of communicating over long distances with each other except by runner and in cases of Indian attacks, which occurred too frequently, the runner himself would become the prime target of the Indians.

Before long however, those who could afford one, had put a large iron bell up on a 30 foot pole at the edge of their yards which were rung by pulling a rope. About noon every day, the ringing of these bells meant come and eat, to the field workers. With houses so far apart, it was clear whose bell was ringing. If the bell rang at any other time, especially at night, it meant an emergency had occurred at that particular house, and anyone hearing it ran to help. Five peals of the bell meant come and eat. Ten meant emergency here, need help. Twenty, meant a life or death situation had developed at that house and when an emergency occurred some rode their mules at a dead run, whether in daytime, or the dead of night. But when the bell rang at night, it filled everyone with dread, for it was a sure sign of very serious trouble at that house. The house was on fire, someone was dying, they were being attacked by Indians, or other disasters were occurring. The settlers were collectively hard working people who supported and cared for one another. Each depended on the others for help if anything happened because the situation could easily reverse tomorrow and usually did.

Women worked themselves to death for their children. Everyone starved because of the lack of adequate and nourishing food. Most mothers were too starved themselves to feed the babies much and breast milk or cows milk were painfully inadequate and usually not available. Cows milk was very scarce. Medical care was non-existent and even if they could find a doctor, he was either too busy, gone to take care of someone else, or they had no money to pay him. Besides he usually only had herbs and/or Indian cures for medicine. So people, especially young ones, mothers and babies most of all, were sick a lot on top of the miserable lives they lived. During childbirth, women were almost always attended by other women and many died from excessive loss of blood and infection, following childbirth. More died from being undernourished.

In the absence of adequate medical care, many babies died from all types of sicknesses usually brought on by their own malnourishment, lack of medical care and unsanitary living conditions. Everybody usually went barefooted. Most but not all women, had one pair of shoe's called "Sunday go to meeting shoe's", because church services, visiting, marriages, or funerals were about the only times they were ever worn.

Although the early settlers had no schools, when one was finally built, the children had to walk back and forth to it every day. Sometimes, that was a long distance and school was usually considered a waste of time. With this country being primarily agricultural then, that attitude prevailed until the 1940's. Very few children went higher than the second or third grade because they were needed to work in the fields and little knowledge was needed for that. This was a case of "strong backs and weak minds". Consequently, even two hundred years after the early Bedsoles arrived here, many still could not read or write and for the few who could, they had very little "book learning" and usually forgot what little they knew in a short period of time, because their primary way of life was farming. So, the vast majority of them never went to school at all.

Those who did had to endure unmerciful hounding and being laughed at by all the others, who spent any free time ridiculing and pointing at each others bare butts, and falling-apart, ragged, hand me down, faded, hand-made pants, shirts, coats, dresses and blouses, which were made either of cloth, leather, or canvas-like material, usually held together with wire and pegs or nails. Girls, although barefooted like all the rest, usually wore dresses made of the lightest cloth available at the time. Unfortunately, this was usually also canvas-like, leather, or hand made cloth. In the winter, everyone suffered mightily from the lack of shoes, socks and winter clothing designed for the purpose. Although the soles of their feet were tough from going barefooted, their feet almost froze in the winter and when thawed-out, all the children cried for hours with the throbbing pain in their feet.

Back then, winter clothing was very inadequate and the majority of earlier settlers made them from deer and bear hides. Covers for their beds were also animal hides in the winter. Any such hides not properly cured, were infested with bugs and worms and this was a continuing problem for them. Imagine having to sleep on a bed made of tree limbs, lying on and under animal hides which were infested with these parasites, which you had to listen to crawling around in your bed all night. Boiling the hides killed these bugs, but made the hides extremely stiff and unpliable.

The women did learn to make shoes from heavy canvas-like cloth by triple-layering the cloth and sewing them several times. These were usually made only for the men because of all the walking they did in the fields and woods. However, such “Shoes” only lasted perhaps 4 weeks. Later, as softer cloth became available, shirts and dresses were made of fertilizer or flour sack material, in addition to “Store bought” cloth. The fertilizer sack material was so rough, thick and stiff, it was like wearing sandpaper. After turning their heads a few times, the necks of wearers would be raw and sore. Consequently, the fertilizer bag material was immensely disliked. Almost all clothing was hand-made by the women, regardless of how crude such clothing was and appeared to be.

In the fall, several women would get together and make quilts by suspending a framework from the ceiling of the house and then sitting around this in wooden, straight-back chairs, they sewed together the thousands of small pieces of cloth they had collected all year, into a bottom sheet. This was then layered with cotton from which they had removed the seeds. This was then covered with another piece of cloth and Finally the finished quilt was sewed. The problem was, there were always small bugs, weevils and mites in the cotton and no way to get them out, except by boiling in lye soap, otherwise everyone lived with them. At night, they could be heard moving around inside the quilts and pillows.

Storing And Preserving Food

There was no way to store, preserve, or save vegetables except for dried peas, onions, corn, beans and potatoes. But even those were eaten by pests. Barns were filled to the roof with corn in the fall, but in the three months of December, January and February it was just about gone. Much of it eaten by the rats and mice. As the Bedsoles acquired additional livestock and had more children over time, this problem was magnified due to the initial houses, barns and cribs being painfully small and no longer capable of holding the increased need for an adequate supply of food and feed and the lack of vegetable preservation for long periods of winter weather. This of course, necessitated the enlargement of existing, and/or construction of new, larger storage buildings, all of which added to the already terrible daily workload.

In short order, with no way to protect their buildings from termites, rats and other destructive pests, and due to leaks in the roofs, the barns and cribs became ramshackle, falling down, dilapidated buildings, sitting close to the ground, full of grub worms, weevils, rats by the thousands, snakes, beetles and other bugs coming in through the thousands of holes and cracks in the walls, floors and roofs. These pests were all eating the corn and other winter food which had been saved for the families. Bears quickly learned that the smokehouses contained meat and they lost no time in ripping and tearing their way into these flimsy structures and eating, scattering, spoiling and destroying the contents. This required immediate attention when it happened, because meat was a commodity which was widely and highly treasured as food and for trade. Many times the protection of the meat meant someone had to stay up and guard the smokehouse every night. This also meant one less person to work in the fields to produce food. Whatever corn could be salvaged for food, had to be taken to a mill or hand-ground with rocks into meal for cornbread from time to time. Since one-third of the meal had to be given to the miller in payment for the grinding, too little was left for the family to last out a long winter season.

Because of all the bugs and rats, when the women started to cook bread, they had to spend an hour before that picking the weevils, worms, bugs and especially rat excrement out of the meal. Nobody worried much about things like rat and mice droppings though, which were too small and numerous to pick out of the meal. It was just considered "Flavoring" for lack of a better word.

There was no way to keep green vegetables through the winter months, but potato’s were stored by digging a hole in the ground about 4 feet across and 3 feet deep, lining it with dry pine straw, filling the hole with potato's, then covering them with more pine straw. The turpentine in the straw would keep out the rats, bugs and worms. Hand made wooden shingles were made and stuck in the ground around these holes at an angle leaning towards the center so they formed a kind of teepee. The shingles were then covered with about a foot of dirt. But the problem was, if just one potato started to rot, as they usually did for any reason at all, the entire lot was lost within 3 to 5 days. In general, the most the farmers could hope for was half of what was stored to last long enough to be eaten. That meant they had to produce and store twice as much as they needed in order to have enough for the winter months after spoilage and pests were taken into consideration. But that meant more cleared land, more planting and constant cultivation until harvest time.

The various but increasing needs of these families constantly demanded more and more time and labor. Dried Peas and beans could be kept in bags but many times those were not available. When they were, the rats soon ate holes in the bags and pests of every kind got to them and into them too. In the summer, everybody had so much work to do they had little time to prepare, plant and take care of a garden. Work in the fields was a twelve months a year, seven days a week, fourteen hours a day job. Hunting was limited to meat for food, or animal hides, for clothes and bed covers. It was generally not done for fun or pleasure.

Many people could not afford a gun and with so many kids around all the time, they were afraid to have one. However, due to the danger from Indians and wild animals, almost everyone eventually acquired a gun from necessity to acquire food. But with the smaller wild animals such as rabbits, possums and raccoons and the inaccuracy of the guns at longer distances, sometimes the only choice for getting these small animals was traps and animals were usually too smart to fall for traps. So meat was a real rarity and a huge treat when acquired. Invariably though, all the neighbors came over to share when it was acquired by any family, if they didn't live too far away. In due time, a log store was built near the Beaverdam settlement and trade became a way of life.

The settlers and Indians traded with and among the store and themselves and of course, the people all traded with the store owner. They traded cloth, sugar, salt, grease, eggs, skins, leather, vegetables, fruit, lead, gunpowder, clothing, smoked meat, corn, lumber, shoes, farming tools and etc. and in a constant stream, more and more such goods made their way from the supply ships and ports from England to ports in Louisiana, Virginia, North Carolina, New York, Philadelphia and other ports in the “New Land” and then to the frontier settlements via wagon trains. Marauding Indians quickly learned to rob and steal these supplies and many times, to kill the accompanying people.

The addition of guards to these wagons followed, but this necessitated higher prices being paid by the settlers and farmers for the goods being transported, due to the cost of the guards to the transporter.
Washing Clothes; A Big Job

Carrying water for washing clothes was a long and tedious job added to the copious firewood requirement for this task. On washday, the work usually began at 3 o’clock in the morning, with the filling of the washpot, which was a big, 3-legged iron pot always sitting in the backyard. It held about 30 gallons of water, which meant 20 to 30 trips carrying water to the pot, then the same to get more for rinsing. When the spring or stream was a thousand feet away, that meant 60,000 feet, or about eleven miles of walking just to wash clothes.

The fire was started with a huge pile of wood around and under the pot. This would allow the water to start heating up, while breakfast was prepared and the mules, oxen and cows were fed and watered. The washing of clothes would begin about five o’clock in the morning and would last until six o’clock in the evening. Days before this, soap had to be made by boiling fat meat and lye to produce a greasy type of “soap”. If no fat meat was available, clothes had to be washed in plain water. So on wash day, this blob of “Soap” was cut into bar shapes and used to wash the dirtiest of the clothes. The job of making soap and washing clothes always fell on the women and older daughters, if any were available.

The clothes were boiled in the soapy water and each piece carried by a short, narrow board from the pot to the “battling block” (Batting Block) which was a block of hickory or oak wood mounted on 3 legs so that the flat end of this block was available like a cutting board upon which the clothes were placed one piece at a time and beaten and put back into the pot for more boiling, until clean. This beating acted sort of like an agitator does in present-day washing machines to clean the clothes. Of course, beating them wore them out a whole lot sooner too. When all the clothes were thus washed, boiled, beaten and then rinsed, they were hung out to dry on bushes, a fence, or whatever was available.

The lye soap used for this, was so caustic, at the end of wash day, the small hands of the women and girls had big, very painful, raw places on them where large pieces of skin had been eaten and torn away by the caustic lye, blisters and hard work with the board. These raw places usually took about two weeks to heal, just in time for the next washday. This work was a nightmare in the summer, also due to the heat of the fire around the pot. But during winters it was much worse. Imagine how cold one would get wearing thin, ragged clothes, standing outside in the ten degree-wind all day and staying wet most of that time.

Mules And Oxen; True Beasts Of Labor

These beasts of burden however, were well known for being mean, hateful, stubborn, stupid and almost always murderous, and people were very wisely cautious around them. Weighing around twelve hundred pounds, maybe more, they would bite, kick, trample, hook and stomp whoever was ignorant or absent-minded enough to get within range, including their owners, and many adults and children were frequently seriously injured, disabled, or killed by them. Catching and harnessing or hitching these animals to plows, wagons, stumps and other things always required extreme caution on the part of their handlers who were frequently relatively young children.

These animals were the backbone of just about every hard job the farmers did and labored constantly from dawn to dusk for endless days, weeks, months and years. They were little-appreciated and seldom given any credit or recognition for all their labors and accomplishments. In fact, most early settlers usually beat their animals mercilessly all the time with long switches to make them pull harder to pull up stumps, pull plows, pull heavily loaded wagons, to work faster, and endless other such tasks.
They were never given anything more than food and water, but were always kept penned or tied up when not working. They were never allowed to roam free because of the inability of their owners to control and recover them. Sometimes they broke out of their pens during the night, causing a major uproar when they were found to be missing. If they wandered off and were captured by someone else, the rightful owner had the problem of proving ownership and resulting arguments over this, frequently erupted into fights, killings and feuds between, by, and among, the parties involved, because the livelihood and very survival of the owner and his family depended to a very great extent, if not totally, on these animals.

I remember one case in my own life, back in the 1930's, when a fifteen year old neighbor of our's was riding their mule from the field to the barn one late afternoon, when the mule suddenly went into a fit of rage, bucking and kicking and threw the boy head over heels up in the air. He landed on his back on top of a stump about thirty inches high. It broke his back in several places and there was nothing at all the doctors could do for that kind of injury in the 1930's. He was bedridden and his parents had the difficult job of turning him every few hours, all day and all night, until he finally died, almost two weeks later. I can still hear him screaming every time they tried to move him. I cannot imagine the suffering and torture he and his parents had to live through, during that time.

Planting Time

In early spring, the cleared land had to be plowed under with a plow pulled by two mules, or oxen which were more plentiful than mules. These plows had a kind of steel “wing” on them, which turned a strip of dirt about 6 inches wide, upside down and when a field was finished, it was ready for planting. Imagine plowing a field of 200 acres, 6 inches at a time, taking about 20 minutes for one pass, or from one end of the field to the other. The amount of time and the walking and handling of the plow and team was very demanding, difficult and time-consuming.

Once the field was prepared for planting, if not already on hand, the corn, cotton or other seeds had to be somehow acquired, either through purchase or some kind of trade. Corn was planted with two kernels every 30 inches. An extra kernel, in case the first didn’t sprout. We now know that corn planters in modern day Nebraska and Kansas, successfully plant 90 or more seeds in the same 30 inch strip, producing 30 to 50 times as much corn on the same piece of land. Nevertheless, the old way of planting persisted until about 1950.

So the harvest back then was pitifully small for all crops, due to the ignorance of the settlers, further worsening their already pathetically deprived lives, due to small crop yields. Low production also meant they had less to eat and to trade, for things they desperately needed all year long. The reason they planted so few seeds was the belief that they would “overplant” and “Burn out” the land. At a time when their very survival depended upon their ability to produce, their actual knowledge, beliefs and actions in such production was vastly inadequate and contrary to their needs for production, survival consumption, and prosperity.

Bedding Cane

This was a long, hard job done in the fall, when everybody cut down the stalks of cane, dug a hole about four feet deep and sixty feet long, piled the stalks in it and covered them with about three feet of dirt.

This was to preserve the cane through the winter and keep it from freezing and bursting, thereby becoming useless. However, during the coldest part of winter, some cane would be uncovered and the leaves stripped from each stalk, the stalks chopped into one-foot lengths and each piece planted in the field in preparation for growing and harvesting it and making syrup. This was a hated and dreaded job, because the cane was covered with ice in the winter and without gloves, the hands would freeze and become numb and then, over and over, had to be thawed out so they would work again. This meant frequent periods of excruciating pain when they were thawing out. Nobody had gloves back then and even if some had been available, the Bedsoles could not have afforded them, as they were considered an unnecessary "luxury".

Making Syrup

This was another back-breaking job, always performed in the worst of winter, usually January and February, because this was a period of relative "down time" in the fields and farming. The cane, which had been cut and stripped of leaves and tops was now hauled to the cane mill, usually located in the pasture. The mill consisted of two barrel-like iron rollers, mounted on 3 spraddled legs.

The rollers turned against each other and crushed the cane between them. They were turned by a mule, which pulled a long pole round and round, turning the rollers through a set of steel gears. The juice poured from the rollers into a collector vat, or barrel, then strained through a piece of cloth, poured into a cooking vat about five inches deep, four feet wide and six feet long, tilted slightly, but with baffles in it to slow down the flow of the juice towards the spout at the opposite end of the vat, thus allowing it more time to cook. With a roaring fire, (which means someone had to cut, split, haul, and stack wood, for days) under the vat, the juice slowly cooked, evaporating the water in it, as it oozed to the other end of the pan where it poured out in a small, steady stream of syrup, into cans, jugs, or even into 55 gallon barrels. If this juice was undercooked, it had an awful, "flat" taste and if it was cooked too long, it was burnt and the taste, although different, was nevertheless just as awful. So, proper cooking time and temperature, were absolutely necessary. Great knowledge and skill were needed to avoid wasting this very important food and trade item.

Acquiring Firewood

Cold weather was a real problem back then and a never-ending source of suffering and sickness. But the constant shortage of adequate food, was the absolute worst of all problems they had to deal with every day. Mountains of firewood were needed all the time. In the summer, it was used for cooking. In the fall, cooking, smoking meat. In the winter, it was needed to heat the house. It was needed all the time for washing clothes, making soap and the cane mill.

So, for long full-time periods of labor and in any spare time, the Bedsoles sawed down trees, trimmed trees, sawed up logs, chopped limbs, split logs, tooted wood, loaded wood, hauled wood, stacked wood and then repeated it all in the hunt for "Literd" (Lighter wood), which was old, dry pine stumps and the hunt for what was called knots, or literd knots which were rich in pitch and resin and which were used by everyone to start fires. Because of this, pine stumps were kept and dried out. The literd was cut into fine splinters which were easily lit and which, due to its high turpentine content, burned fiercely for a very short time, but hopefully long enough to dry out and set fire to the regular firewood stacked on top of it, usually consisting of split pine. oak or hickory wood was preferred because these burned slower and produced a hotter fire.

But oak and hickory were hard, dense wood and required much backbreaking chopping and sawing to produce firewood. The problem was, with the unbelievably tiny fireplaces inside houses back then and with all the holes in the walls, floors and roofs, there was no way in the world to get warm in the winter time. Once they thought the settlers had enough mountains of wood, for the fireplace to last all winter, that work temporarily slacked off, but then it was discovered they had to do it all over again for the cane mill, washing clothes and for the making of soap. In the winter, they had to put so many covers and animal skins on the bed to keep from freezing, they could barely turn over with all that weight bearing down on them.

After supper during winter, everyone always had to shell peanuts, shuck corn, work on leather, repair stuff, or do something for another three hours before going to bed. So they sat in the "living room", which always had two or three double beds in it anyway and sniffled and froze to death while they did that work too. They couldn't wait to get in bed and hopefully warm up some. Nobody had adequate winter clothes, so everybody froze equally. Most people wore 2 pair of breeches, two shirts and some kind of coat, if any or all of that was available, which was seldom the case. Some wore animal hides as overcoats. But no matter how tired people got, there was no such thing as a vacation or time off. Any time off meant someone else had to take up the slack and this was usually followed by a period of less to eat.

Seeds For Planting

Producing, preparing and storing corn, peanuts, cotton and other seeds meant they had to be bagged and stored as they were prepared. The shelling of peanuts and corn was always done for days and usually lasted long into the nights, until the smaller kids couldn't stay awake any longer.

With the passage of time and the time-consuming tediousness of the seed work, someone hit on the idea of holding a "Peanut Shelling" at his house one Saturday night and the word spread that single people were invited and there would be a "cake walk" for them. That meant everybody there would have to shell one "pan" of peanuts (about five gallons), more or less. With people usually living 3 miles or more apart, the single people were desperate for a chance to at least see a member of the opposite sex if nothing else and they were all excited and showed up in droves and any single women always had their parents, or older brothers, as escorts and guardians.

Three men, who could make a reasonable attempt at music, played a guitar, fiddle and banjo. After the peanuts were shelled (the farmer tried to get all of them shelled he could) the cake walk was held. In this case, everybody moved out into the front yard, kerosene lamps were placed on the front porch, lighting the yard at least some. A circle with numbered squares was drawn in the dirt. The music started, the single people found themselves a partner, usually someone they had never seen before and holding hands (the greatest thrill), began walking around the circle as the music played. This was considered very romantic, especially by the girls.

Being able to hold a girls hand was more than the single guys had even hoped for. The music stopped and everybody stopped. A number was drawn out of a hat and called out and the couple in that numbered spot, was the lucky couple and they could go off in a corner somewhere together, but not too far away and certainly not out of sight, and eat their cake. Cake's were brought by several of the females and were considered an expense incurred to get the daughters married off. Eventually, over a period of time, these affairs evolved into full-blown music and dance get-togethers, but was not popular at the same house twice in any given year as one could almost always count on such turning into a knock-down, drag-out, free for all fight, before it was over, because someone would always bring moonshine (A big no-no) and start getting drunk and/or someone would do something or say something offensive to someone else. However, out of consideration for the homeowners and their wives, the party goers would stash their moonshine at the edge of the yard, or in the woods near the house and not actually bring it into the house, as the homeowner was certain to take offense. This homemade whiskey was called "Moonshine" because it was usually made by the light of the moon, deep in the woods, for privacy.
Gathering Pine Tar And Pitch

This is absolutely the nastiest, hottest, most exhausting and despicable job anyone could ever do. As it was done back in the 1700’s, it was still being done like this in my lifetime: The pine trees were scarred by cutting the bark 6 to 8 times in the shape of letter V’s, so that all the points of convergence of the cuts, caused the resulting “Bleeding” turpentine to flow down the cuts and drip ever so slowly into small oblong, metal cups, mounted and fastened to the trees with nails.

Every 15 days or so, each cup had to be cleaned and scraped out and all the turpentine collected from them emptied into small, five gallon buckets, which were then carried by two people, to the waiting mule or ox-drawn carts or wagons where it was poured and scraped into 40 to 50 gallon barrels. This was then carried to a “mill” where the turpentine was cooked until the majority of water in it had evaporated and what was left was a black, thick and sticky goo, which is true tar. This was sold not liquid and traded for other, more-needed goods. It was also shipped to England where it was used to soak tough hemp cords which were then used to pack into and seal cracks between the planks of the hulls of ships. Much tar was needed by England and as time went on, with more and more such ships being produced in this country, more and more tar was bought, sold and traded here too. The big problem was, the worker invariably got the sticky turpentine all over himself, his hair, clothes, hands, tools, barrels, boxes and everything else he touched or came into contact with. Then, unless he had quick access to kerosene, he had a makor cleanup problem.

Religion Back Then

When without a church, and at the earliest opportunity, the people would gather and begin building a “Brush Arbor”, which consisted of several sapling trees, cut down and trimmed and set into the ground as uprights. This was then crisscrossed on top with more small limbs and covered with small, leafy limbs and grass, to provide a kind of shelter to ward off the hot sun and the nightly dews. Crude benches were also crafted from half-logs with wooden pegs as legs, which served as seats. The Brush Arbor was usually built in the edge of someone’s pasture and was used as a temporary church. People then were very religious and faithfully attended their churches and practiced what they preached in terms of their personal conduct, speech, and daily practices.

Almost all the early Bedsoles belonged to a church, usually of the Quaker faith. Those churches were very strict about their members and anyone living in the area who did not join, or who were "kicked out " would be shunned and ostracized by church members. Little or no credit was extended to them. Trade with such neighbors was almost non-existent. The non-members could not count on help when it was needed from their neighbors. So, it greatly benefitted all to join the local church. Not to do so, was certain to end in numerous additional hardships for the family of the refuser.

Any time a church found out one of its members was drinking alcohol, mistreating his wife or children, being unfaithful to his wife, or was otherwise derelict in the conduct of his personal life, the church pastor and elders would meet and discuss the situation and approve a plan of action to force the wayward member to mend his ways. Two or three elders together, would go visit the person and point out the problems and outline what was required for him or her, to get back within the good graces of the church. If they failed to mend their ways, they were visited again and warned that this was their last chance. If that failed, the wayward member was kicked out of the church.
Not being a member of the church meant that person would not be able to trade their goods for things they and their family desperately needed. In addition, they could not count on the help and support of church members, and that fact alone was usually so devastating, it was enough to get the wayward member to mend his ways. Church members enjoyed many important benefits such as; When anyone got sick, or injured, everyone gathered there and did whatever they could to help care for the party in need, including caring for babies and children, the family, cooking, milking cows and doing all the farming, cultivating, planting, harvesting and other chores normally done by that family. Knowing that tomorrow, the person in need could very well be any one of them, this practice was looked on as a very valuable thing to have in ones life, together with the ability to trade among themselves. Caring for each other meant survival, living or dying, in many cases.

When a member in good standing, moved to another location, they could request a letter of transfer from their local church to the church at their new location and stay in good graces with the church. However, they were only allowed 30 days to be accepted into the new church. Preachers and pastors were key people in everyone’s lives and were always treated with the utmost respect and courtesy and were especially cared for by all the families in the area. It was common practice to invite the Preacher and his family to ones house for Sunday dinner where the host family always prepared the best food they had for the meal and the guest(s).

Velvet Beans

Picking Velvet Beans was pure torture. They were planted among the corn, so the vines would have something to grow and run up on and multiply. They were used primarily for cattle feed. Picking velvet beans was one of the most despicable jobs, next to cotton. The beans are all covered with a thick coating of small velvety hairs which all have reversed barbs all along the hair, so if the hair sticks in your skin which it will, the thing could not be pulled out and would break off instead, resulting in skin itching and infections.

The itching and stinging of the skin were horrendous and impossible to describe. The settlers all wore heavy, thick, guano sack shirts and the thickest pants they had, which were usually made of leather or hides. The legs were tied around the ankles really tight. The shirt collars were buttoned all the way up. The shirt sleeves were rolled all the way down and tied tight around the wrists. Still, the velvet got inside the shirts, up the sleeves, up the pants legs, and inside the clothes. With the weather around one hundred degrees in the summer and the humidity at about ninety-five percent and these beans being down among the corn where no breeze could get to the workers, picking them dressed as they were, was pure torture for days on end. The weaker workers frequently fainted from aggravation and heat exhaustion.

Gathering Corn

The ears of corn had to be pulled from the stalks and put in a sack with a strap which was worn around the neck. The leaves on corn stalks are also lined on each side of the leaf with reversed needle-like stingers and a leaf will cut ones skin like a knife. Then the sweat would get in the cuts and burn like fire. By the time they had been carrying that fifty pound bag of corn around their necks and dumping it in the wagon for twelve hours, their shoulders and backs would be throbbing and hurting so badly, they could hardly keep from crying. Working among the stalks of corn meant no breeze could get to them and the heat was torture. Every time their sacks were full, it was carried and emptied into the mule-drawn wagon. When the wagon was full, the corn was hauled to the barn and unloaded and stored inside. With one hundred or more, acres of corn, this was no small job. Corn was used primarily for animal feed and for meal and human consumption in the form of cornbread. If the family had children age five or higher, they did much of this work. Its hard to imagine today’s children doing any such job, even for five minutes.

Picking Cotton

This was one of the worst, hottest, time-consuming jobs that ever existed in any Bedsole’s life. With a 7-foot long canvas sack strapped around one's neck and shoulders, the cotton was picked and put into the sack, which dragged on the ground behind the worker, who was either bent over at the waist, or on their knees, down among the cotton stalks. The cotton bolls all had needle-sharp prongs surrounding the ball of cotton and when the picker tried to get the cotton, these prongs would inevitably stick into the finger tips and break off under the skin, causing the pricks to fester and become swollen, red, inflamed and extremely painful. Within the short span of one day, several of these sores would already be infected in all the fingers which only made the work more painful and being more careful when picking the cotton, only added to the amount of time to harvest it. When workers were paid for this work, even in the 1940’s, it was half a cent per pound picked. A normal cotton picker would usually pick 100-125 pounds in a day. That would yield the mind-boggling sum of fifty to sixty five cents for the entire twelve-hour day. Of course, back in the 1700-1800’s, it was a lot less. When picking in the early morning, the landowner would pay a lot less per pound due to the dew being on the cotton which he claimed, added false weight to the cotton.

Cultivating and Harvesting Tobacco Leaves

With England demanding all the tobacco they could get, while paying cash for it and taking it in trade, our ancestors planted and harvested a lot of tobacco. When the tobacco plants were only about 2 feet tall, the leaves became covered with leaf-eating, long, ugly, green tobacco worms, which had to be picked off of each leaf by hand. Since these worms usually stayed on the bottom side of the leaves, that meant each leaf had to be turned upside down in order to see and remove these worms. Once removed, the worms had to be placed in a sack and destroyed when the sack was full. During the summer months, the tobacco crops had to be tilled to keep the grass from growing, because the grass reduced their leaf production and stunted the tobacco plants and resulting crop. In the fall, the tobacco leaves were picked and tied in bundles of perhaps twelves leaves. These were then hauled from the field in mule, or oxen-drawn wagons and the bundles were taken to a “Drying house”, which was usually a large barn with large vent holes in the roof so that the hot summer air could flow through the building and dry out the leaves. When the leaves had thus cured “just right”, meaning the leaves looked, felt and smelled right, meaning they were golden brown in color and felt leathery, they were removed from the drying building and were delivered to a collection point to be sold or traded and shipped to England to be used for smoking, dipping, or chewing tobacco.

Catching Fish

One could always count on getting stuck with a couple of long and very painful fins. A favorite way of getting fish was to put out "set hooks". This meant hunting, cutting and preparing small cane poles, lines, weights, hooks and bait and carrying them to the river and sticking them in the banks usually upstream from where the fishermen camped. Another way was called “Setting a trot line”. It was called “trot” because everyone would trot to the end of the line which was usually one hundred to two hundred feet long, tied between two trees, just below the waters surface, with a line and hook tied to it every 18 inches. Sometimes, the trot lines were tied on opposite sides of the river, or creek, but was usually tied across the mouth of a “slough” (“slew”), which was a pond cut off from the stream. This sounds like fun, but when you have to set 200 to 300 of these and go around to them 3 times during the night to take off the fish and re-bait the hooks, fun it is not.
Everybody constantly slid or fell into the river and stayed wet all night. Another big job which went with this was spending two to three days hunting and collecting "Puppy dogs" (salamanders, or spring lizards), for bait. They hid under logs and stumps and piles of wet leaves in the swamps, but only in the swamps, which meant you had to slog through the muddy, nasty, swamp. This was the only bait which was free and which the big "Channel cat" catfish would bite.

People couldn't afford to waste time and energy on anything fish would not bite. This exercise was to produce food for starving families. It was not a side dish, nor something they picked up at the supermarket, since there was no such thing then. They were fishing for their families to have food and for their very lives. The next day, it usually took several people an entire day to skin and clean the catfish, cut them up and fry them. At the table to eat, needless to say, was any neighbor crowd who had gotten the word.

EARLY INDIAN PROBLEMS

Although indian attacks on white settlers and settlements, in Virginia are listed below, they are only examples. Indians were just as adversarial and warlike in North Carolina too. For those Bedsoles who were living here prior to 1800, indians were almost a constant problem and that was true for all states which were initially "Settled" by pioneers. On top of all the day to day hardships our ancestors were already suffering, they were frequently savagely attacked and murdered by indians. The examples listed further on, are also listed in the unpublished manuscript, "Dunsmores Indian Massacres", in the Archives of the Virginia State Library.

"The Indians are coming up the Sandy," was the first cry of many a Virginia border spy when he rushed into one of the frontier forts. The report would bring hurried preparations for defense, and fleet runners would rush off to warn the scattered pioneers to seek the security of the forts. Low gaps through the Cumberlands were ingresses into Virginia for the dreaded Shawnee from the Scioto and other Ohio points. When the heavy snows of their midcontinent climate melted and the first signs of spring appeared, the redskins stirred from their lethargy of long inaction and turned toward the Sandy Passes into Virginia. Beyond the gaps of the mountain wall were pioneer settlements and scattered cabin homes. To the indians, there was plunder and many scalps to be taken. Virginians called the gaps "the Sandy Passes" and kept scouts patrolling beyond them into a wilderness known as the Scouting Ground, in order to provide as much advance notice as possible for preparation, prior to an impending attack. Some indians came through the gap at the head of the "Dry Fork of Tug River", others through the passes at the head of the Tug.

For the frontier settlers, Scouts or spies as many called them, were selected from volunteers. They were rugged, self-reliant, courageous, and dreaded little the loneliness of days on the march deep down Big Sandy, Tug Fork or the Kentucky rivers. They went in two's or four's, carried food for the duration of their journeys. They were forbidden to use their guns except in the direst emergencies, were forbidden even to build a fire. Skulking Indians might hear or see and ambush them. Many a frontier settlements and cabins went up in flames and its inhabitants carried off or massacred because its protecting scouts were killed, or did'nt detect an impending attack. Isolated cabins were the most vulnerable to attacks. Here are just a few examples of the savage atrocities committed against these settlers. Many more and much worse, widespread cases occurred to those who lived in the earlier "settlements" of 1605-1780, when and where there were no army post to help protect the "Frontiers", of these increasing and expanding early settlements.

PAGE THIRTY

Jessee Adams, Russell County, Virginia. Him, his wife and ten children were massacred by the Indians on Stock Creek in 1782. His two brothers are said to have also been killed by Indians near Fort Blackmore in 1790.
Michael Auxier was scalped by the Indians while living on the Clinch River but lived, and was ever afterwards called "Bald-headed Mike".

Fanny Scott, Husband Archibald Scott, and all their children were killed by the Indians and their cabin burned to the ground, August 8, 1788.

Humphrey Dickenson. Killed by Indians on a rock in Clinch River in 1778, following an attack at his cabin in which his wife and all their children were murdered, and a chase from there to the rock, where he was killed.

James Bush. Killed and both of his daughters Mary and Ann, were captured by the Indians, but were retaken in Floyd Co., Ky. by the Clinch Militia. Ann was tomahawked but survived. Her and others were attacked later, most were killed and scalped by the Indians but Ann still survived to rear a family.

John Anderson and John Barksdale. Both were attacked and killed in their fields at Castlewood, Va. in 1778.

John Blackmore, Jr. was attacked by indians in his cabin, but survived. He moved to Tennessee, but was attacked there by indians who killed him, in 1788.

John Carter, his brother Dale, Johns wife and 5 children, were all killed in their cabin just down the river from Fort Blakemore, and the cabin and everyone in it was burned to the ground, in 1785.

John and Vincent Bedsole. Two Brothers. They were attacked and killed by an indian hunting party, who came upon them in their field, and too far from their cabin to use it as defense.

Imagine yourself being such a family member and the horror of arriving at your cabin to find such things had happened to your own family, and the rage and helplessness you would feel.

From The Unpublished Manuscript "INDIAN ATROCITIES" By Emory L. Hamilton

Along the Clinch, Powell and Holston Rivers, pages 91-92. Captain Abraham Bledsoe, (Jr. b.1730) who was with Col. Evan Shelby on the Chickamauga Campaign of 1779, had a son captured by the Indians whom many writers blandly say was the son of Anthony, or Isaac Bledsoe. That son was also named Abraham. Thomas Bledsoe, also a son of Captain Abraham, tells of the capture of his brother in his Revolutionary War pension claim, saying: " The family (Captain Abraham's) moved to about seven miles from the Long Island (now Kingsport, TN) on Holston River, on Reedy Creek, and at this place his father was living when he entered the service of the United States in 1778, as well as he can remember. He again volunteered under the same Captain to go in pursuit of a party of Indians, who had broken in on the frontiers, and had taken away with them, as prisoner, this applicant's brother; that after pursuing for some time, they came up with the rear guard of the Indians, who gave notice to the advance party and they escaped, taking with them their prisoner, and he was not heard of until he was exchanged at the Falls of the Ohio". Thomas Bledsoe, (The possibility does exist that he was our Thomas Bedsole, Sr., b. 1750, ancestor, but I could neither prove nor disprove it) was slightly in error as to the year in which his brother was captured, which is excusable, since making a statement from memory forty or fifty years after the event happened. He does not give the date when his brother was released at the Falls of the Ohio, which is today the site of Louisville, Kentucky. The actual date of the capture of the Bledsoe boy is given in a letter written by Col. Arthur Campbell to Governor
Patrick Henry, dated 25th April, 1781, a few days after the actual happening, wherein he says: "The Northward (Shawnee) Indians have been troubling the people very much this spring, in small parties; killing and captivating and wounding. They come up Sandy River generally, and on the last occasion, penetrated as far as the settlement on Holston, carrying off a son of Captain Bledsoe's". (Abraham Bedsole, Jr.)

Abraham Bledsoe (Sr.) settled on the upper part of Reedy Creek in the year 1730, according to his land survey, but he was certainly in the area earlier than this date (In fact, he owned land there in 1726), and on February 14th, 1728, he was appointed by the Court of Botetourt Co., VA, "Constable in the precinct he lived in upon Reed Creek." He later moved to Moccasin Creek of the North Fork of Holston River, where he died near Moccasin Gap in the summer of 1801. His wife was named Catherine, and among his children were: Thomas Bledsoe, born in North Carolina in 1760 (Actually 1750) and who married on 6 November 1769; (After all, he could not have married at 9 years old) Margaret Eakin; Abraham Bledsoe, III, and he was perhaps the one who was captured by the Indians; three daughters, Thely, who married James Eakin, brother of Margaret who married Thomas Bledsoe; Hetty Bittle and Polly Bledsoe. This is almost certainly our Thomas Bedsole, Sr., and accounts for the reason I could not locate him in NC from prior to his birth until he was about 27 years old (1777, when he was in the Revolutionary War).

Sharecroppers And Their Annual, End-Of-Year "Settling Up" : My Own Experience

For those Bedsoles fortunate enough to own their own land, harvest-time meant they picked, hauled, traded, stored and sold their produce and crops, for cash and/or trade-goods. But the vast majority of them, like us, ended up being share-croppers. That means they would work all year for a landowner and when the crops were harvested and sold in the fall and the costs deducted, the landowner would theoretically share the difference with the sharecropper. However, since the landowner had made advance arrangements with a store owner to allow the farmer a specified amount of credit during the year for food, clothing, and farming tools, the cost of all that had to be deducted from the profits before any profit was divided between them.

In sharecropping, the landowner would guarantee payment in the fall to the store owner and the farmer was always forced to almost starve his family because the landowner would set such a low credit limit, such as $300 for the entire year. Even back then, that was not a lot of money. The farmer simply could not adequately provide for his family on such a small pittance. Imagine, $25 a month for 12 people, which was to pay for any and all expenses.

Therefore, hunting and fishing were meaningful activities, for acquiring meat. In addition, the landowner and storekeeper but not the farmer, kept “the record” all year, since the farmers could neither read nor write, this left the storekeeper and landowner free to overcharge the poor farmers, whatever they could get away with. But, that's how share-cropping was done and had been done as far back as anyone could remember. My own parents also were typical share-croppers their whole lives and that's how we lived. In late 1926, when his own father died, my dad, being the oldest son and responsible for his fathers estate, entered into verbal agreements with a store owner in Alabama, who eventually foreclosed on him and took all my grandfathers land, eleven houses and property and left us no choice but to become share-croppers.

This did not mean a lot of difference in living for us, though. Although my dad could probably have prevailed in court in this case, he was very ignorant of the law and procedures and his word was his bond.

Unfortunately, he thought everyone else with whom he did business was also as honest. That was and still is, a very big, very costly, and very sad mistake. One I still make myself, which gives you some indication of my level of stupidity and total lack of intelligence. Anyway, share-cropping meant the landowners made their living, fortunes as it were, and very existence easier by riding on the backs of the poor, ignorant, desperately starving sharecroppers. In their despicable ignorance, the Bedsole share-croppers were horribly mistreated in that regard from the beginning, until they quit being sharecroppers about 1950, after this country became industrialized..

"Settling up" though, was something which was done about the end of December, every year. I was fourteen or fifteen when I was finally allowed to go to one with my oldest brother, Bill. We went to the landowner's house, went inside and sat down with him at the table. He got out a shirt-pocket sized notebook and started adding up the "costs". Since the way to settle up, was for the landowner and he alone, to determine how much the farmer owed, we just stood there as he read off the endless list. Once my brother said he didn't remember picking up four hundred pounds of fertilizer. Bill said it was three hundred pounds and the landowner immediately flew into a rage. How dare Bill question him. "There it was in black and white" in that notebook.

In the end, as was the custom, the landowner told Bill he still owed three hundred fifty dollars, above what the "profits" were, and how we would have to stay and farm another year for him. As Bill and I were walking back home in the dark, although I was young, I was astounded and appalled at the obvious, total scalping we had just witnessed. I began to question Bill mercilessly about the total lack of evidence and how in the world did we know what the landowner said we owed was accurate. Why didn't we keep a list too and why didn't we have to sign for everything and how did we know the storekeeper didn't pad the bill to the landowner, together with the landowner's padding. I was furious at the total absence of any type of verification.

Patiently, Bill told me that was just the way things had always been done. To question either the landowner or the storekeeper, was certain to result in their refusal to "provide for us for the coming year". We went home, but I never let up. I seethed and boiled over the "settling up" situation. I complained and whined about it, until Bill finally began to see things my way.

Then one day, about two weeks later, he told the landowner we would not be staying there and that he would be paid off in monthly payments, over the coming year, for we were going to Florida to live. Then he and my sister's husband left and hitchhiked to Orlando, Florida, because they had heard you could work down there and get paid by the hour and be paid EVERY FRIDAY! That sounded like a total and unbelievable miracle.

But they both got a job in the orange groves near Orlando as laborers, and eventually rented two little houses in the woods and a couple of months later, they showed up in an old Pontiac and it took 4 trips from Opp, Alabama to Orlando, but we moved, lock stock and barrel. That was the end of the share-cropping business for us and eventually it totally disappeared and died a long, slow, agonizing and well-deserved death.

But the landowners fought it all the way because they didn't want to lose a good thing. Three of my sisters and a brother stayed in the Opp, Alabama area and lived there, but the rest of us never moved back, except for me. I just moved back to Opp to live permanently, but I am retired and do not have to worry about money any longer. But Thank God, that sharecroppers life is finally and permanently dead, for most Bedsoles. The majority of Bedsoles though, remained as farmers and sharecroppers until about 1950, when they began working more and more in jobs with regular paychecks.

HOW BATH COUNTY, NC (ABRAHAM) IS RELATED TO BLADEN COUNTY, NC WHERE MOST OTHER BEDSOLES WERE FOUND
Keep in mind that, for years and years, almost all the Bedsoles, to our knowledge back then, were in the Bladen County, NC area. Also, remember that I claim Abraham was the first Bedsole here, arriving at Bath County, NC alone, on Sept. 11,1700 and arriving again with his family on May 1, 1701. With that in mind, I set out to see if there was any way any type of physical connection somehow existed between Bath and Bladen, Sampson, Duplin, Dobbs, and Johnston Counties. Well, it occurred like this, in the sequence listed; 1696 Bath County was an original county created from the expanse of land, which was NC. In 1712 Craven County was created from Archdale Precinct of Bath County. In 1729 New Hanover County, was created from a part of Craven County. In 1734. Bladen County was created from a part of New Hanover County. So, in effect, Bladen could have actually been part of Bath County !!. So there is the connection. And that, helps a lot to show that all the Bedsoles in Bladen County, were descendants of that Abraham, b.1673 in Germany. Now, don't say I never told you anything. Just one more piece of the puzzle, solved.

IN 1830 SOME BEDSOLES MOVED FROM NC TO ALABAMA, TENNESSEE AND GEORGIA.

Thomas Jr., son of Thomas Bedsole, Sr. and Rebecca Jones, moved from North Carolina to Montgomery and Lwmdes County, Ala. in 1830.. Apparently, these moves resulted from the death of Thomas Sr. about 1830, which broke up the NC family. Those moving included; Thomas Sr's son, Travis Bedsole and his whole family from Beaverdam, NC to Haywood County, Tennessee. William Henry Bedsole,( III)'s (Son of Thomas, Sr.) son Amos moved his whole family from North Carolina to Warren County, Georgia, while Thomas Bedsole, Jr., and wife Charlotte Ann (English), with all their children, spouses and grandchildren, together with the William Davis family, Thomas Wise family and the Thomas English family moved from Bladen County, North Carolina initially to Crenshaw and Lowndes Counties in Alabama, with Thomas Jr. and wife. Thomas Jr. and Charlotte and family and \William Davis and wife, at some point, moving to Coffee County, Ino, Alabama, east of Opp, Alabama, and at a later date, moving to Butler County, Ala., Where Thomas Jr. died in 1865 or so. This move was lock, stock and barrel for all concerned and was made by mule-drawn wagons. Possibly as many as one hundred people and ten to twelve wagons were involved. When they arrived in Alabama, they apparently acquired government land there, in the form of "patents". Henry, a son of Thomas Jr. and Charlotte, appears to have wasted no time in acquiring such land and it appears that he and his brother Sessoms, had made earlier, initial “Scouting” trips to Alabama and back to NC the year prior to this larger movement of people. This was probably done to determine the type of land available, cost, location, housing and locations of any towns and army forts, indian problems and best routes, before moving the families and so many people at one time.

As seen below, Henry acquired many tracts of land in several counties in Alabama, Louisiana and Florida, while the other Bedsoles initially settled primarily in Alabama, (unless otherwise noted below) on acquired land as follows. These land acquisitions were probably NOT the only ones made and others were probably purchased and acquired by deed, but these are the only ones available on the Alabama Land Patent internet site at this time, shown along with their respective counties: If any others were purchased, swapped, or traded, they would have been listed as Deeds, not Patents, and would not be listed below.

IN FLORIDA

EDWARD BEDSOLE'S STORY

Edward, listed as landowner several times, above, was born to Thomas Bedsole, Jr. and Charlotte English in 1819 in Beaverdam, NC. He died in 1909 and is buried in Clarke County, Coffeeville, Alabama. You can see above, that others also moved to, or were born in, Clarke County. He was about twelve years old when they moved to Alabama. He was married to Susan Blackwell and they lived in Crenshaw County, Alabama initially, but he moved his family to Mossy Head, Florida about 1853, then to Clarke County. (Coffeeville).

About 1891, Edward moved to Grove Hill (Coffeeville), Alabama where he, his son Quincy and Edwards sister Elizabeth’s son Rayford, built a log store at the crossroads between Coffeeville and Grove Hill, Alabama. Over the next couple of years, they developed a group of drinkers, smokers, snuff users, tobacco chewers, never-do-wells, hangers-on and trouble-makers, who frequently gathered at the store and discussed politics and how they were all being wronged by the local politicians. Eventually, Edward and Rayford began selling moonshine whiskey from the store and the gang which gathered there from time to time now numbered perhaps 50-60 men. Over time, they turned to stealing from politicians at first, but that practice grew until their victims included their own neighbors, who were just poor, ordinary farmers.

Over time, Edwards gang developed a hatred for the merchants in Grove Hill and in the county, who charged outrageous prices and sometimes took any property the farmers owned, in payment, and when they, especially the sharecroppers, could not pay their bills after harvest time, the gang began stealing from the merchants own stores and their harvest crops too. Big landowners also began to fall victim to the gang for the same reasons. If the gang decided they wanted someones corn, cotton, pigs, cattle, or other property, they simply showed up in the dead of night and took what they wanted. If the owner objected with violence, he was simply shot, for his trouble. The local sheriff was always “too busy”, or “out of town”, to do any law enforcement of this gang, after all, the sheriff lived among them, and shortly, they began taking whatever they wanted from whoever had it. Finally, five good men from the area sent a telegram to the Governor of Alabama, explaining the situation to him and asking him to send army troops to arrest the gang. Instead, the Governor, not being the brightest bulb in Montgomery, telegraphed the Sheriff asking for clarification and the sheriff replied he had everything under control and downplayed the problem to the Governor. When they saw the Governor was not going to do anything, the same five men went to adjoining counties and rounded up a group of 300 men, each one armed with the new Winchester repeating rifles.

These 300 men converged on Edwards house. They found Edward and son Quincy, there and killed Quincy and a few others and ran the rest of Edwards gang out of the county. Ironically, although he was the ringleader, Edward also held a high degree in the local Masons, who are pledge to always take care of each other, and several of the three hundred men in the gang were also Masons. So Edward was allowed to go because of that, provided he "left this country and never returned". Edward stayed away for about twelve years, but moved back to Coffeeville, where he lived to the ripe old age of ninety-three. Proving the adage that the meaner you are, the longer you live. Edward died in 1909 and is buried in Clarke County, Alabama, in New Prospect Cemetary, along with Susan Blackwell, his wife and a few of their relatives.

That story can be found more or less in its entirety in a booklet entitled "The Mitchum War Of Clarke County, Alabama", obtainable from The Clarke County Democrat newspaper, P.O. Box 39, Grove Hill, Alabama 36451. I recently read in the newspaper that a writer, perhaps unrelated to the Bedsoles had rewritten the Edward Bedsole story, in a much more comprehensive manner, perhaps flowering it up quite a bit and in fact, downright making much of it up, and that it was becoming a best seller. I have since heard that the new version portrays Edward as a sort of hero, born in Ireland !. In addition, a movie based on that new book is being contemplated. The name of the new book is "Hell At The Breech", which was actually what Edward named his gang at Grove Hill. Wierd name for a gang of thieves and murderers.

Larkin Bedsoles Fight For Food

This story is true. It shows how desperately people, and especially the Bedsoles, lived back then. Larkin Bedsole, b.1826, a son of Duncan Bedsole (Thomas Sr's son) and his wife, was a very poor farmer in North Carolina. After his first wife died, he married Atha Carter, a much-younger woman. At age 63, Larkin came home one day from his field work, to eat lunch, only to find that Atha's two grown sons had just finished off the last of the cornbread and grease. Enraged, Larkin attacked the two with his fists, but quickly realized he was in a losing battle and grabbed a long butchers knife from the kitchen counter. The two other men did likewise and a knife fight was launched in the tiny kitchen with butcher knives, but quickly spread to the back yard for lack of maneuvering room.

In the backyard, near the woodpile, Atha grabbed an axe and planted it in the middle of Larkins head, from the back. A newspaper article on this incident related that "Old man Bedsole, was loaded onto a mule-drawn wagon and hauled to the hospital at Fayetteville, where doctors said he was not expected to live".

However, it appears that he did indeed live another 20 years!! They called him "Old Man Bedsole" at age 63. Today, we don't generally consider a man an Old Man until about age 80-85. Here is his marriage record to Atha Carter:..... Larkin Bedsole Cumberland Co 65/W To Atha H. Carter Cumberland Co 25/ May 17, 1890 J. McGeddie, Justice Of The Peace.

Bedsole Peculiarities

It has been a curious finding to me that there are certain ancestor and descendant Bedsole lines which have an inordinately high number of mean, hateful, vicious, drunks and trouble-makers in them and other lines which have a high number of lawyers and doctors and others which have a high number of carpenters, those with lots of mechanical skills and finally, those with high numbers of school teachers in them.

A despicable peculiarity I have also noted among them, is that there are a few lines which contain Bedsole men who were habitual drunks and who were excessively mean, brutal, hateful and cruel especially to their wives and children. One of these illustrious people, I am ashamed to say, appears to have been my own GG-Grandpa. To those few, I claim no kin whatsoever, notwithstanding the obvious. You will read further along, that Thomas Jr., was just such a drunk, and mean man.

The Bedsole Curse

But there is one thing I have found prevalent in all the Bedsole lines as far back as I could trace it and that is what I call “The Bedsole Curse”. If you are a Bedsole by birth, you have more than likely been eaten up by this curse and are well aware of it already. “Murphy’s Law” states; “If anything can go wrong, it will”. But in the Bedsole Curse, I found that “If there are several things that can go wrong at the same time, and there always is if a Bedsole is involved, the one thing which will cause the most damage, cost the most money and hardship and which will have the most detrimental effect on the Bedsole, will always go wrong FIRST.

Examples Of Hardships They Endured

As detailed elsewhere in this History, here is a summary of the hardships heaped upon early settlers, including our own ancestors, during their coming to this country, trying to settle down here and their daily lives afterwards. About 1950, the majority of Bedsoles began getting into more industrialized employment and leaving agricultural living; Imagine leaving England, Germany, or any other relatively civilized country, boarding a ship with a spouse and 5 or more children, their spouse dying, leaving them alone, with no way to subsist even until tomorrow, or next week. They arrived in this country, only to learn that their children are to be taken away from you if you are a woman, and divided up among complete strangers, never to be seen again. Burning up in the summer and freezing to death in the winter, being plagued meanwhile by Indians trying to kill them, mosquitoes eating them alive, living among hundreds of others forced to live the same way they were forced to live, trying to find food every single day, any way, somehow, somewhere, any kind they could come up with. Having to do all that while trying to build some type of structure to live in, with their bare hands, perhaps an axe, and saw, by themselves knowing if they did not produce it, they would not have it. No medical care of any kind, except whatever herbs or Indian remedies they found or learned about, their family members, especially children getting sick and slowly dying, making an already desperate situation, nothing short of disastrous. This is the way they lived day after day, week after week, month after month, for years and years, seemingly without end.

CONCLUSION OF THE BEDSOLE HISTORY

Jack Bedsole, who lives in Illinois, is a descendant under (Thomas Jr.) William Jefferson Bedsole. Jack, my brother Cecil and myself, met yesterday at Highland Home, Alabama, for lunch and to discuss the Bedsoles. He asked this question; "JD, what single thing was it that caused you to conclude that the early Bedsoles originated in Prussia". My answer, although not definitive, was to the effect that there really was no single thing. It was a conglomeration of bits and pieces of information over the years, and especially in Germany, that pointed to the most likely possibility that the Bedsole/Betzold and Bledsoe/Bletsold surnames existed in Prussia prior to the creation of the German state as such, and that they surely existed in England in an English court case in the year 1061, together with the short article by Charles Bedsole, which is included above, and several other bits of fact and conclusive research, which pointed to Prussia and not just to Germany. Additionally, and just as relevant, was the absence of information which did point only to Germany, as the origin. In other words, there was no reason(s) to conclude that Germany was the end of the Betzolds/Bedsoles. I do know that Bledsoe, although in England in 1061 and very likely many years prior to that, did not originate in England. The migration of people was from, not to Germany. I also know that Bledsoe and Bedsole, surely had the same ancestor at some point in the past, and that point was most likely Prussia. In the absence of a paper trail back in time past Germany, I cannot prove via a paper trail, they originated in Prussia, but, I did prove to my own satisfaction anyway, that they did originate in Prussia, and I invite anyone, one and all, to prove they did not.

That concludes the Bedsole History, as it were. Words, whether true fact, or conjecture, cannot adequately convey the suffering our ancestors endured, until about 1950, when the majority had quit share-cropping, and began working in various factories and at more commercialized and industrialized occupations, thus making more money and greatly raising their standards of living. In my case, and for my own early and miserable life growing up, I say with extreme appreciation: "Thank You God".

There are numerous Bedsole marriages, births, deaths, and etc, in the counties and states which follow, but which I did not list, because it was too time-consuming. I am including a few just to show you the County and State where they can be found, and to record such for future reference. It is very time-consuming finding, copying and posting them to this record, but the real problem is I have no way of knowing where most of them fit on the Bedsole List Of Ancestors And Descendants, and that would take much more time. Also, some of the marriages listed below are duplicated because they were in various sites on the internet under different headings. There are many Bedsoles in Texas, having spread there from Walnut Hill, Mississippi (From Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Jr. and from her brothers Edward, Henry, and others from Coffeeville, near Grove Hill, Alabama following the shootout there. Although there are many Bedsoles there. I did'nt find much on them in Texas prior to the 1900's, with the exception of numerous birth, death, marriage and divorce records.

The 1751 marriage of Elisha and the 1774 marriage of John and Sarah are the earliest marriages I have come across. They are documented in the Quaker Church's monthly meeting records: Elisha Bedsole married Mary Edwards at Cane Creek, NC on September 15, 1751. John Bedsole married Sarah Brown at Cane Creek, NC on June 9, 1774. So we can safely conclude that John was a son of that Elisha.

The following are not in sequence, or order of any kind. Sorry, but that took too much time too, when I was already too tired to do it.

Marriage Bonds

When a couple were planning to marry, they had to post a Bond. Back then, it was for $500. So that if the husband, as father of any children, died, or ran off and left the family, there would be money for them to live on for a while at least. Usually, it was posted by the father of the Groom, but could be posted by anyone. The purpose of the Bond was to prevent the family from having to be supported by their neighbors. However, it also had an unexpected benefit in that, other men, learning of the wife becoming a widow, or abandoned and that she had the Bond money available, would also try to marry her.

Here is a marriage Bond posted by John Bedsole (Not the same John above), in 1828; STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA Cumberland County. KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That we, John Bedsole & Love McDaniel are held and firmly bound unto his Excellency James Indelio, Governor of the state aforesaid, or his successors in office, in the sum of Five Hundred Pounds, current money, to be paid to the said Governor, his successors or assigns, for which payment well and truly to be made and done, bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, and administrators, jointly and severally, firmly by these presents. Sealed with our seals and dated this 19th day of January, A.D. 1828. THE CONDITION OF THE ABOVE OBLIGATION IS SUCH, That whereas the above bounden John Bedsole hath made application for a license for a Marriage, to be celebrated between him and Catherine Horn of the county aforesaid; Now, in case it shall appear hereafter, that there is any lawful cause or impediment to obstruct the said Marriage, then the above obligation to be void, otherwise to remain in full force and virtue. JOHN BEDSOLE- Seal LOVE McDANIEL- Seal Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of Dan McDermid. DAN MCDERMID

Application For Pension

Early Land documentation

As pathetically inadequate as it is, I am including copies of all the documentation I have found on the early Bedsoles, with few exceptions, such as the coat of arms and the certificate for country of origin (Germany-Betzold) for Bedsole. For the past fifty-eight years, I have been blocked at every twist and turn by an almost total lack of records. Also blocking my research, were the various misspellings of the ancestors/descendants, such as Bedsoll, Batsol, Bledsau, Bletso, Batson, Bedsaol, Bedswol, Blatsow, Betsel and etc. Another problem was the tendency to name children after themselves, parents, brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles and grandparents. I noted no less than eight Elizabeth Bedsoles for instance, whose fathers were named Thomas Bedsole. Also, way too many people went by their middle names, and/or nicknames, such as “Scooter”, or “Lizer”, or “Cotton” Bedsole. The court house and its records in Bladen County, NC, where the earliest Bedsoles settled, burned down five times between 1768 or so and 1900, taking all land, marriage, death, birth, and other vital records up in smoke. These burnings prevented most duplicate records from also being on file in the capitol of NC, Raleigh. After the Bladen courthouse was burned down several times, the Court Clerk took the records to his own house and kept them for a long time trying to save them, but someone burned his house down too, for his trouble, along with the records again. More than likely these fires were the work of arsonists who did away with the records to avoid lawsuits, jail time, or other legal actions against them. Other Researchers, or anyone who wants to go and look; Take a good flashlight, a good camera with flash, a work table, a portable lamp and a chair to sit in. Also, take a small copier and supplies and a small folding table, or something to lay stuff on. I invite anyone who has the grit, to go to that courthouse and do some research. But be prepared to stay not less than 7 days at a time, to look through hundreds if not thousands of papers, in boxes and no other kind of order, and to work really hard at it for not less than ten hours each and every day. Land records are about the only thing one can find with the word “Bedsole”, or equivalent/variation, on it. Its almost as if our ancestors never existed as far as shipping, births, children, spouses, parents, deaths, children, marriages, divorces, court actions, and etc.. It didn’t help any either, that NC only began to require birth records in 1912..

LAND RECORDS

I wrote these just as they were on the original documents, misspellings and all. With my own explanations of who and what. In most cases. Land records are the only documentation for many early Bedsole ancestors. Unfortunately, they do not list spouses, siblings, or other relatives. The big problem with land records, when people named their children after their own ancestors and descendants, is, that they do not list ages, birthdates, spouses, or relatives or whether the buyers and sellers are Jr., Sr., III., or anything else. Consequently, except for guessing who they are, based primarily on the location of the land related to other data, and the date of the transfer of title, there's no way one can determine who they actually were. Its "Best Guess", at its best.

FIRST BEDSOLE LAND RECORDS IN THE U.S.

The originals of these land records were recorded as shown, by hand. William, son of Abraham from Germany, apparently left NC and went to Virginia, and acquired the first land in 1719. He must have then either sent word, or went back to NC and persuaded Abraham, to move to Virginia. The two 1726 records show them going together for 2,000 acres via 1,000 acres each by Patent, (Free land from the government). The other records show William acquiring another 1,000 acres, his brother Isaac acquiring 1,000 acres separately in the fourth record, but likely adjoining Williams land. Abraham had apparently moved from that area then. However, I continued to find "Abraham" in Virginia until 1730 or so, Abrahams last name was written as Bessow when he arrived in NC by ship in 1700, then Batson when he came back in 1701, it was changed to Betsoe, Bedsoe, Bedsole, and finally Bledsoe, by seperate english Scribes from time to time, reflecting the fact that Bedsoles in general, could neither read, write, or spell until about 1950. The Library of Virginia has numerous other Bledsoe land records, and I know at some point, some of them were true Bledsoe's from England, but no way to determine who were Bedsoles and who were Bledsoes. Regardless of all that, the origin of both Bedsole and Bledsoe, is Prussia/Germany.

serving as the colonial Land Office. The collection is housed in the Archives at the Library of Virginia. This is not a copy of the record of the same date and location above. So they acquired 2,000 acres of land on the same day. Very likely they were limited to 1,000 acres per Patent. So they did two in order to acquire 2,000 acres together.

William Bledsoe. 28 September 1728. Virginia State Land Office. Patents 1-42. Location: Spotsylvania County. Bedsole as "Bledsoe" land records ("Entries") in court record book

July 11, 1719. William, now about 18-19 years old, and a "Bledsoe" on his land record, is granted 214 acres of land in Russell County, St. Marys Parish, Virginia. This is the very first land record for a "Bledsoe" who is actually a Bedsole, in the United States.

1726. Abraham now also a "Bledsoe", his wife Rose, and daughter Elizabeth S. are listed in Chalkleys Chronicles, in Virginia, among the "Early Settlers Of Virginia". With them are William Barry, husband of Elizabeth S. and a daughter of Elizabeth and William; Mary who married Thomas Harding with his life as 1709-1772.
May 20, 1726. Abraham, and William, both now "Bledsoes" on the documentation, are jointly granted 1,000 acres of land in Spotsylvania County, Virginia.

May 20, 1726. Abraham and William Bledsoe are jointly granted another 1,000 acres of land in Spotsylvania County, Virginia.

Sept. 28, 1728. "Isaac Bledsoe" was granted 1,000 acres, also in Spotsylvania. That indicates Isaac is very likely also a son of Abraham and Rose, having been born about 1707, in NC.

Sept. 28, 1728. At the same time as Isaac, but separately, Abraham Bledsoe is granted 1,000 acres also in Spotsylvania County, Virginia. All 3 of them being there during the same time period lends credence to my guess that Isaac is the son of Abraham, and brother of William. (This also indicates that the 3 of them then owned 4,000 acres of land in Spotsylvania County, Virginia).

March 12, 1739 William is granted 700 acres in Franklin County, Virginia.

June 16, 1768. William Bledsoe is granted 48 acres in Culpepper County, Virginia. Apparently, Abraham is now dead.

Feb, 1770 Botetourt County, Va. Abraham Bledsoe, appointed Constable for that part he lives in upon Reedy Creek. He died in June, 1770. However, this is Abraham, Jr. and not the one born in 1673 in Germany.

(Note from JD: Dobbs County only existed a few years and its name changed). Dobbs was created from Johnston which was created from part of Bladen. After "Dobbs" was deleted, it became Lenoir County, created from part of Bladen. So even though he owned land in "Dobbs", it is likely to have adjoined the land of Thomas Sr., still in "Bladen" County. John Bedsole, born about 1730 is listed on the 1790 Bladen County Census. I know the William Bedsole above was not the son of Thomas Bedsole, Sr. because in 1793, Thomas’s William was only 10 years old. That leaves William (Henry) Bedsole, Jr., b. 1727.

Bledsoe, Elizabeth Date: Feb 4, 1750 Location: Spotsylvania Co., VA Record ID: 44078 Description: Grantor's Wife Book Page: D Property: 100 acres on north side of mill branch of Hunting Run. Remarks: William Bledsoe, Gent., to his son "Moses Bledsoe, during his natural life to his son, William Bledsoe," etc. Deed of Gift. 100 acres on north side of mill branch of Hunting Run. 5 Feb 1750. Elizabeth, wife of William Bledsoe, acknowledged her dower, etc. Notes: This land record was originally published in "Virginia County Records - Spotsylvania County, 1721-1800, Volume I" edited by William Armstrong Crozier.

NOTE: After Thomas Bedsole, Sr. either died in NC, or moved to Tennessee in 1830 as I believe he did, his NC family split up, with some staying in NC and others going and settling in Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia. His son Travis moved to Haywood County, Tennessee and another son, Thomas, Jr., moved his entire family to Alabama. So, it is Thomas Jr. who is the cause of us Bedsoles being born in Alabama. Thomas Jr. married Charlotte English in NC and for those of you familiar with the highway in Alabama between the towns of Samson and Elba, the brick house about halfway between the two towns on the west side of the highway, with the big, white letter “E” on the chimney, is the area where Charlotte’s parents and their family settled in Alabama. That E stands for English. The rest of the children of Thomas Sr. and Rebecca remained in NC to my knowledge. I was in Beaverdam, NC two weeks for practical purposes, and found the country there to be covered with fields interspersed with narrow strips of woods. Think of having to clear 160 acres of it all trees with an axe and two mules as our ancestors did, not to mention all the stumps, I am overwhelmed by the enormity of such a task, much less the thought of also having to provide food for my family while having to keep the hostile indians fought off, back when that country was wild and unsettled. The following Land Patents were typed from the original, handwritten documents, as they were written.

VIRGINIA LAND RECORDS OF ELISHA BEDSOLE/BEDSAUL

The following land records clearly show Elisha’s last name to be Bedsole and not Bedsaul. Another misunderstanding by Scribes, or mispronunciation by Elisha, when asked his name. "Elisha" is an english name. I remember one BEDSAUL researcher, who received a copy of these land records from me, and promptly changed the spelling of Elisha’s last name in each of the four records to "Bedsaul", then mailed them to other Bedsauls, claiming he had found them that way. We had a strong disagreement as to what had actually occurred. It was settled though when I sent them all the internet address, and told them to "Go and see for yourselves". Still, they claim they are not Bedsoles.

The following land deed was from William Henry Bedsole, son of Thomas Sr., to his grandson, William Henry, son of Amos. or from William Bedsole, father of Thomas Sr., to William Bedsole, son of Thomas Sr. No way in the world to know which is true, because they all were living there in 1821. However, I believe the William, father of Thomas Sr. was giving it to William, son of Thomas Sr....................

SOME OTHER INTERESTING THINGS
STORY INVOLVING DUNCAN BEDSOLE ABOVE, BROTHER OWEN, AND SISTER, ELIZABETH ELIZABETH BEDSOLE, married Archibald Rials, in Beaverdam, NC in 1818. By 1840, they owned a large plantation with several slaves and several slave houses in addition to the mansion house. It seems to me from the stories about them, Elizabeth was a stern, mean and hateful woman. One time, one of Elizabeth’s male slaves ran away. She sent for Duncan, her favorite brother, who was probably as mean as she was.
Duncan brought Owen, another of their brothers and they took a pack of hunting dogs from Elisabeth’s house to track down the slave. Eventually, Duncan and Owen treed the slave in the top of a big oak tree. Duncan told him to come down, but he would not. He told Duncan he would come down if Duncan would call off the pack of dogs, but Duncan refused and told the man he would be shot down if he didn’t come on down. Owen tried to call Duncan off, but Duncan eventually shot at the man, causing him to fall out of the tree, whereupon the pack of dogs attacked him. Owen then shot and killed several of the dogs and told Duncan that no man on earth deserved to be treated like that and that Duncan was no man for doing it either. He added that Duncan was to stay away from him from then on and he would stay away from Duncan. So, it appears they parted ways and never amended their relationship after that.

ELIZABETH BEDSOLE’S LAST WILL; 1847

Following is Elizabeth Bedsole’s Last Will in which she appointed both Duncan Bedsole and her friend Malcom Monroe as “Executor” of her estate. With Malcom being a lawyer and Duncan being illiterate, I have always wondered how this will was probated and settled. However, I notice that Elizabeth was living with her brother Williams son, Owen Bedsole as she is listed in his household, on an 1860 Alabama Census, at age
83. So somehow, she must have lost, abandoned, or sold, the NC property during the 13 years between 1847 and 1860. Also, in 1860, Malcom Monroe was a blacksmith in Alabama. She bequeathed 50 cents to her children, her grandchildren, her brothers and sisters. But to sister Rhoda, 100 dollars and everything else she owned to her brother Duncan who it is said, "Was as mean as she was, and her favorite".

In the name of God, amen. I, Elizabeth Rials being of sound mind and perfect memory, do make and publish this, my last will and testament, revoking all former wills by me. I bequeath to Noal Rials fifty cents, to Hardy Rials fifty cents, to the heirs of David Rials fifty cents, heirs of Unity Pope fifty cents, Thomas Bedsole, Jr. fifty cents, Nancy Hall fifty cents, Sarah Blackwell fifty cents, Travis Bedsole fifty cents, heirs of William Bedsole fifty cents, Rhoda Parker one hundred dollars and to Duncan Bedsole, my brother my plantation where I now live and all lands belonging to the said plantation for all his natural life then to his son Thomas Bedsole, and his heirs. To Duncan Bedsole and to Malcom Monroe, all my lands lying in Bladen County, about the Beaverdam. I give all of my residences and personal property on my estate to my brother Duncan Bedsole and friend Malcom Monroe.

ELIZABETH BEDSOLE her mark

Witnesses: Bluford Simmons and Daniel McDuffie

NOTE: It was interesting to me to note that Malcom Monroe, listed in Elisabeth’s Will, as a “Friend” was a lawyer who was also listed on many other widows Last Wills in NC also as their “Friend”. Wonder how he handled their Plantations in view of the fact that he was an educated, trained lawyer, named as the estates Administrator in all cases, and with her brother Duncan Bedsole in this case, who was a dirt-poor, illiterate farmer, unable to either read or write. It’s a safe bet that Duncan and others didn’t see what hit them in the settling of these Estates, considering that Malcom and the Probate Judges were in all liklihood, in cahoots with each other. In addition, I noted Malcom Monroe, working as a Blacksmith in Ala. in 1850. He must have skipped NC after getting rich. Otherwise, why on earth was he working as a blacksmith ?. Also, after writing this book, I came across a court case in Cumberland County, NC wherein Duncan hired a lawyer and sued Malcom for misfeasance, malfeasance, dereliction of duty, and taking advantage of Duncan and Elizabeths illiteracy and ignorance, in the handling of her estate. Looks like Ol’ Duncan may have been illierate and ignorant, but he was not stupid.

BEDSOLE INDIANS IN NORTH CAROLINA

ROBERT BEDSOLE, b. 1790. (Thomas Sr.)

He Married Rebecca Starling. I have 10 children listed for them. I frequently receive emails from other Bedsoles who claim their G-grandmother, or Grandfather or some other ancestor on the Bedsole side “was a full-blooded Indian” of some kind and would like to know if I have any information about that. I do know that in the late 1700’s and all of the 1800’s, the Bedsoles and Indians in North Carolina intermingled and a few with the Bedsole name did marry “Indians”, both men and women. Some of these “Indians” were full-blooded Indians and some were only part-Indian and part Caucasian. However, there is NO Bedsole who was EVER a full-blooded Indian, as that word is defined by the Federal Government. One Bedsole, who was half-Indian was Benjamin James Bedsole, a son of Mary Bedsole, daughter of Robert “Robin” Bedsole and he was only half-Indian, since his mother was white. Her parents were white and her grandparents were white. But it appears that Benjamin’s father was a full-blooded Indian, although Mary would never divulge his name, for fear he would be killed by the white people, due to racial prejudices.

Benjamin James Bedsole

Accolades To Benjamin James Bedsole half Indian, half white, son of Docia Bedsole and an unknown Indian man, and grandson of Robert. Ever since I first heard about him, I have admired him. When growing up, he hated the way the whites and Indians treated his mother and himself, for he was neither totally white nor Indian, and both sides mistreated him and her at every chance. At first, Benjamin fought whoever insulted his mother or himself, but he was always greatly outnumbered in such cases. Since he could speak both English and the Indian languages, he learned to act as a sort of “middle-man” in settling disputes between the races. He eventually became fairly famous in his area for his ability to settle disputes between the races without courts, judges, trials and fights. So, he spent much of his life as an Arbitrator for both sides. Eventually, even the court judges used his services as an Arbitrator to help settle Indian and white disputes. There is a record of him being paid $3.00 “for meals and horse” to arbitrate between an Indian chief and some white settlers. Upon his death, the total value of Benjamin’s estate was $34.30 and consisted of two pewter plates, two pair of breeches, one long coat, one wool coat, 4 shirts, and a pair of boots. After looking at that total value, it looks very familiar to me as being the total value of my own financial empire when my family moved from Alabama to Orlando, Florida in 1946, when I was 15. In fact my own vast financial empire still looks much like that to this day.

9. 1790 Bladen County, NC Census, lists Thomas Bedsole (Sr.), with 2 white males over 16, 1 male under 16 and 7 white females in his house, plus himself. However, his name is spelled Thomas BEDSON. You learn to take such misspellings as a way of life back in the old days. Also listed are his neighbors; William Davis, John Sellars, Archibald McDaniel, and Samuel Sessoms. These, except the McDaniels’ also moved their families from NC to Alabama in 1830, when Thomas, Jr. moved his own family. William Davis and his wife bought land adjoining Thomas Jr’s land in Coffee County, Alabama, near Ino, east of Opp, Alabama and that’s where they all 4 lived and died and are buried. But, the CEMETARY has been a plowed field now, for over 150 years. Archibald McDaniel was shot and killed in the Civil War at Chancellorsville in 1863, at age 41. Duplin County, NC land records show that James West, maternal grandfather of Thomas Sr., owned two tracts of land in that county in 1769. Land Patents book # 20, Raleigh, NC., pages 378, 379, 380 and 467. Prior to 1734, Duplin and Bladen Counties were both part of New Hanover County, NC.

CENSUS RECORDS

These Census data are not in any kind of order. I listed them as I found them. Sometimes I found the newest ones first. Census Takers were paid 50 cents for every 100 people he counted. They were expected to pay their own expenses and furnish their own transportation and food for themselves and their mules. Settlers were very suspicious of any stranger coming around and usually took no chances. If they thought the stranger was a "Government man", they tried seriously to kill him, in all kinds of ways, because they thought he would cause their taxes to go up, or was there to cause trouble otherwise.

This is an actual letter of resignation submitted by a Census-Taker in Sampson County, NC, to his supervisor. I think its priceless;

"I have been out here all over this country for 12 days now. I have stayed wet, fell in the river 10 times, been tangled in briars, had a tree fall on me, been stabbed, shot at, cow-kicked, dog-bit, mule-stomped, bull-hooked, goose-pecked, and beat with a stick. I have spent nights in the mud, starved for days, walked for days and nights, wore the same clothes for days, took no baths, sat on that mule for hours and hours, been lost repeatedly, been lied to, had rocks threwed at me, run off, cussed at, and shot at some more. I have been doing this for 12 days now and made two dollars. I quit".

You can understand that treatment, if you know that people back then lived MILES apart, lived a very hard, demanding, rugged, deprived and dangerous life. They did not like strangers walking up to their houses and that applied doubly to anyone they considered a "Government Man", as Census Takers were believed to be..

The first official Census in this country was in 1790, but there are a few early starts dated 1783-85 for some states. A Census was supposed to be done every 10 years. A couple of states began the 1790 Census in 1784 and 85. Sometimes they were complete, sometimes not. During the period up to about 1950, the poor Census-takers lived a hard life. It was generally up to them to get to all the people, get their own food, lodging and their own transportation. The hardships and suffering these people incurred is a story unto itself. There are painfully few census reports available on the internet even now. Also, several bedsoles settled in Mississippi, Texas and Louisiana in the late 1800's but most of that Census information is not currently on the internet, either. It is possible that I have duplicated two or three of the Census Data below, so bear with me if you find that to be true. I transcribed the following Census info. as it was written, misspellings and all.

People are working for USGENWEB, transcribing them, proofreading Census info, and putting them online, especially through that site. As these are made available, more information on the Bedsoles will become available. As for now, the following information is all I could find.

Bedsole, John. Head Of House. 1 son under 16. 1 wife, and 1 daughter under 16. No other names, or ages are listed. This son is likely also named John Bedsole, and b. 1774. This John is likely born 1753, son of William, b. 1727 and a brother of Thomas Sr.

Bedsole, T. (Thomas Jr.). He died somewhere around 1868. Wife Charlotte and son Travis, 17, had moved in with son Sessoms Bedsole's family sometime in 1850. Since Charlotte never came back to him, I assume Thomas Jr. was not only a drunk, but was also mean to his wife and their children. Thats based on the fact that more than one of his sons were listed on more than one Census as "Drunkard" and as a "Rustler" which infers that he was also likely to be at least a drunkard. Sessoms, one of those sons, went to prison from 1860 to 1880 for selling his neighbors cows. He spent 20 years in jail for that crime.

BEDSOLE 431 Note: This was the household of Travis Bedsole, b. 1782. Son of Thomas Bedsole Sr. In 1830, he had just arrived in Haywood County, from NC. In a Census INDEX they do not list anyone living in the house, just the last name. Wife Nancy Simmons was living then.

1840 Haywood County, Tennessee Census. Travis, son of Thomas Sr. Last name misspelled.
Bidsole Travis.... pg0391.txt. Note: Last name misspelled by Census taker. This is the last record I can find on this Travis Bedsole. This census lists 1 white male 10 to 15, 1 white male 60 (Him), and one white female 50 (Wife, Nancy) She is shown in the 1850 Haywood County Census, living with her daughter Margaret and Margarets husband W.M. Strayhorn. So Travis apparently died before 1850 and, at 65 to 69 years old.

NOTE: From the Census info., Sessoms and family were counted in Coffee County, Ala. and in Warren County, Ga., for the year 1860. So Sessoms' family moved from Coffee County, Ala, to Warren County, Ga., then to Walton County, Fl. I never knew before, that they had lived in Georgia. Amos Bedsole, already in Warren County, was Sessoms' first cousin, so thats how and why Sessoms moved there too, to the same place, different houses. Father of Amos was William. Father of Sessoms was Williams brother, Thomas Jr. Sessoms was in jail for rustling 1860-1880. His wife waited for him all that time. But on the 1880 Census below, his wife is "Rebecca".

Malcom Monroe, all my lands in Bladen County, lying about Beaverdam. I give all of the residences and personal property on my estate to my brother Duncan Bedsole and friend Malcom Monroe. signed on 12 day

NOTE FROM JD. Malcom Monroe was a lawyer. Duncan was her brother and Duncan could neither read, write or spell. Guess what happened to Duncans part? The last thing I found on this was a NC supreme court trial wherein Duncan sued Malcom Monroe, for wrongfully acquiring his sisters estate, for the very reason stated above. Maybe Duncan was not so dumb after all.

HISTORY SUMMARY

As you read this part, keep in mind that these people were living from day to day in such a desperate fashion that just getting food every day, occupied most of their waking hours. The very next day, they began all over again, looking for ways to obtain food for that new day. And so it went, for most of their lives. Added to that to make matters worse, they usually had 8 to 14 children.

1673-1730 "Abraham", the first Bedsole into this country was born in Germany. It is most likely he was born in the Rhine River Valley in that country because it would have taken someone with the grit, determination, and physical condition of the agricultural workers in that location, to come to this wild, unsettled, dangerous country and deal with the daily hardships they inevitably faced, just to survive. The specific German ancestors of Abraham, will more than likely never be known and at some point, it becomes unimportant anyway. After all, as with all ancestors, there is a point in time at which any researcher must stop. 1673 is my stopping point, relative to the Bedsole ancestors. I am sure no one will ever be able to go back beyond that year, no matter how hard they try. Abraham apparently moved his family from NC to Virginia about 1726, because he is a co-owner of 1,000 acres of land in that state, with his son, George "Bledsoe", as listed in the Land Records section of this book. He appears to have stayed in NC from 1701 until 1726.

1730. Abraham and wife Rose had; George, William, Elizabeth, Abraham Jr., Elizabeth, Joseph, Sarah, Moses and Abraham II. These children may have all been born in NC, or Va., or some in one,some in the other. No records of birth in this country until about 1912.

1727. William Henry (Jr) was born. It is he who was the Bedsole ancestor in this country, although others as you will read, also carried the name. William married Rhoda West in NC, about 1748-49.
Thomas Bartlet Bedsole (Sr.) was born in Bladen County, NC, to William Henry Bedsole, Jr. and wife Rhoda West. Thomas Sr. was married to Rebecca Jones in 1749 in Bladen County, NC. He then married Margaret Eakin on 11/6/1787 following Rebecca’s death from blood loss during childbirth. Thomas served in the Revolutionary War, along with sons, Travis (1777-1778) who must have been no more than a boy, and William Henry, which shows the desperation of the settlers here, to win their Independence from England. It also shows their hatred of that government at that time. Along here some place in time, Thomas Sr. apparently was becoming or had already become, a heavy drinker. It is also likely he was mean to his wife and children, as that trait seems to have been passed down to more than one of his sons. I didn't know his middle name was Bartlett until 6/2008. Obviously, the name was taken from his father’s brother.

The period of time the children of Thomas Sr. were born. These are all listed in the Ancestors And Descendants in Section 2 of this book. His son Thomas Jr. was my GG-Grandfather. Thomas Jr. was apparently a drunkard and mistreated his wife and children so badly, she took the last child still at home in 1850 (Travis. My G-Grandfather, age 17), and left Thomas Jr. and never went back. More on this also in Section 2. Thomas Jr. apparently died in 1825 or so, but his wife lived until about 1892. I say "About" because there are no death records, and Census Records were the only documents available to make such guesses. After He died, several of his children and their families left NC in 1830. Travis moved to Haywood County, Tennessee, Amos moved to Warrenton, Georgia and the rest moved to Crenshaw and Montgomery counties in Alabama, then spread from there. The other children of Thomas Sr. remained in NC.

Today, there are Bedsoles in almost all states. There is even a Brian Bedsole living in New Zealand. This book is a beginning. It is something for some other Bedsole to work from and with in the future, to expand our history, knowledge and legacy (Although Lord knows who that will be. I sincerely wish anyone who has what it takes to do it, the very best of luck in your future Bedsole research because you will surely need it. But most of all, you will need TRUE BEDSOLE GRIT. I hope that all Bedsole readers will submit any additional information, names, etc., for whatever they feel is missing, or needs correcting, or updating, to me at jdbedsole@oppcatv.com and to Fay at Rostraver@earthlink.net. I also hope that you will tell all the Bedsoles and relatives you know, where to find this Book and List, on the internet. I will keep those internet sites posted with the most current copies to the extent that I can obtain the cooperation of those site Administrators, which is not always easy, with a few of them. Currently, I have it posted on the Coffee County, Ala., and Bladen County, NC sites, although its in parts 1 through 4 there; http://www.rootsweb.com/~usgenweb/nc/bladen/bladenbios.html

In addition they are posted on the Rootsweb site although the 2003 version, at the following internet address: http://www.rootsweb.com/~usgenweb/nc/bladen/bladenbios.html for the History, and go here for the List http://www.rootsweb.com/~alcoffee/officialbedsolelist.html I have also sent it to the Clarke, Butler and Lowndes Counties, Ala., and to Sampson, Brunswick, Bladen, and several other counties in NC to be posted on their internet sites, but don't know if they will get posted or not. You may check them, by going to www.usgenweb.com selecting Alabama or another state and the county you want then look for it there. Some counties post it on their "Biographies" part. Others post it elsewhere, others want me to list each family and their children separately and individually, which would take 40 forevers, and which I will not do, and some won't post it at all. Thanks a lot to those last sites.

If you have anything constructive to contribute to any future update of this book, such as additions, corrections, more names, dates and etc., please email me at jdbedsole@oppcatv.com You can always (until I croak anyway) send a letter if that fails, to: JD Bedsole, 100 Beamon Avenue, Opp, Alabama 36467. Or call me at 334-493-1370. If my email address changes, I will post the new address on the Genforum and Rootsweb Bedsole internet sites at the following sites: www.genforum.genealogy.com/Bedsole and at www.Rootsweb.com/Bedsole on the Bedsole Message Board. After I croak, I hope my co-hort, Peggy Bedsole will continue to keep my stuff with her stuff, on her Bedsole site.

I have freely given, mailed, and emailed copies of this book in its entirety, to many, many Bedsole descendants, telling them they are free to copy it and give it to others. I have had a grand total of three who contacted me to say something good and about 5 who said things like; "Well, you don't really know anything for sure about the Bedsoles do you?", and "All this stuff did was leave me confused and make me want to know more", and "Did you actually talk to anyone in Germany about the Bedsoles over there?", and best of all was this; "Well, this whole thing was just a mess and a waste of time, and it doesn't tell me a thing".

Therefore, if all you can do is try to make me feel bad by bad-mouthing me about this book, don't waste my time. But, if you would like to say something nice, like "JD, you are an absolute genius, and a jewel for doing all that work for all of us, then giving it to us free. What you have produced is absolutely priceless, and gives me and my descendants a record of their real roots. Thank you so much for all the untold hours and money you have put into it", that would be nice and I would like that.

BEDSOLE ANCESTORS AND DESCENDANTS FROM 1673

THIS IS MY LAST AND FINAL VERSION OF THIS LIST AND IS DATED JANUARY 1, 2009

ALL OTHER VERSIONS ARE OBSOLETE AND SHOULD ALL BE DESTROYED.
IMPORTANT NOTE: This version of the List Of Bedsole Ancestors And Descendants contains important and material changes in my previous conclusions as to the first Bedsole(s) into this country, based on information I discovered on July 14, 2008 which revealed that on September 11, 1700 "Abraham Bessow", arrived at Bath, NC from Germany, on an English ship, Captained by William Barrow. He arrived there again on May 1, 1701, on the same ship, and again with Captain Barrow, but this time "Abraham" was accompanied by his wife, Rose, and their young daughter, Elizabeth. Those are all English names, each listed by Captain Barrow as a "Pal." which is short for Palatine, from Germany. In 1719, Abrahams son, William acquired land in Virginia and his name was listed as William Bledsoe. In 1726, Abraham and William jointly acquired two tracts of land there Russell County, of 1,000 acres each. From that date onward, Bedsoles and some true Bledsoes from England, are all so intermingled in locations, states, dates, names and etc. on documentation, it is virtually impossible to determine if what you are looking at is actually a Bledsoe or Bedsole. In addition, the Bledsoes and Bedsoles both bestowed such common first-names on their offspring as, William, Thomas, John, Elizabeth, Mary, Sara and etc., such as to drive a researcher over the brink of madness. Nevertheless, the list below are Bedsole Ancestors, Descendants, and Spouses of Bedsoles. In many cases, some ancestors with the Bedsole surname changed the spelling to Bledsoe. In addition, some Bledsoes changed their last names to Bedsole. Some did so without knowing, because until about 1900, most could neither read, write or spell. To sum it up, today many "Bledsoes" are really Bedsoles and many "Bedsoles" are really Bledsoes. Therefore, any and all versions of this list by me, prior to this, my last one, are obsolete, incomplete, erroneous, void, and should be trashed. As with the Bedsole History, these lists were researched and written by me and are all copyrighted by me in my name. If, you come across similar lists in the future, and someone has removed my name and substituted their own as Author, then they have violated the copyright laws.

For those Bedsoles, spouses and relatives on this list, below, who even may still be alive, I have deleted their birthdates, but kept the year of birth if known, because there are so many with the same names, who are in different generations. I don't show such dates of birth in order to prevent Identity Theft, yet help other Bedsole researchers identify others and determine who fits where, including themselves, on the List. Where the person is dead, if I knew it, then the date of birth and death are both shown, because its hard to impersonate a dead person, although I have known some who did it quite well.

Without written records which show, list, define, or hint at any relationships, certain assumptions must be made to arrive at any logical conclusion regarding the earliest Bedsoles, primarily those born prior to about 1900. An example of those are, the Abrahams, first William's, Elisha, John's, and Vincent Bedsole. I know without proof that they were all related, but exactly HOW they were related is not documented and is not known with absolute certainty and will remain so, in view of the lack of documentation. A main indicator of their kinship though, was that they all owned adjoining parcels of land, sometimes on more than one occasion, and in several locations, from time to time, in NC, Va., Tenn., Alabama and Georgia. They all usually moved almost as one and with the exception of Abraham, they were all apparently born in NC and Va. within a short time-frame. I believe the kinship and relationships of the vast majority listed below are very accurate, in fact, extremely so, as has been proven more than once, by other descendants and facts which were actually known by a descendent, or were documented in rare instances. But the vast majority of those on this list, were determined by me purely through logic and analysis of all kinds of information and conclusions. So, if your family and, or, relatives are listed, chances are great that you can thank my pea-brain for that. A few you can thank those Bedsoles who were kind enough to share some data with me, and to those few, I again say "Thank You".

Of the 58 plus years I have spent researching the Bedsole ancestors and descendants, about 98 percent of that time and at least that much money spent on it, was spent on this list. It was unbelievably and incredibly complicated, confusing, time-consuming and demanding to the highest degree to produce it with any degree of accuracy without one bit of documentation in most cases, and without any means of validation to insure accuracy, with a handful of exceptions and with no one to ask. In addition, more than 99 percent of those I did ask through letters and phone calls, did not reply at all, and to those I say, "Thanks a hell of a lot for nothing" too.

The fact that our relatives named their children after themselves, their brothers, sisters, parents, aunts, uncles, grandparents and even great-grandparents did not help at all, and that is further complicated when several with the same names lived at the same time. After all, how would you determine among 3 William Bedsoles, which was the father, son and grandfather, of whom among them without something else to go by ?. If there is anything about all that research that you really appreciate, I hope its the time, effort, money, grit and absolute teeth-clenching determination I expended on this list during all those years, while working everyday and sometimes nights working and raising 3 children, and that you appreciate that the most. But considering all the names, relatives, dates, locations and details I put into this list and the lack of means for validation, I am repeatedly surprised at its accuracy and completeness in many cases. For that, I thank my parents and my German determination and stubbornness, in addition to the very few who supplied their family information to me, to be included as part of the List.

I know I still have a few Bedsoles under the wrong ancestor(s), but I cannot get those Bedsole descendants with the correct knowledge to talk, write, email, phone, or otherwise communicate with me, to straighten those out. I have tried every kind of way to get that information. As a matter of fact, I recently made 15 random phone calls to Bedsoles in NC., 15 to those in Louisiana, and mailed 25 letters to Bedsoles everywhere, picked randomly from the Internet White Pages, explaining who I am, what I am doing and asking for information and assistance in that regard. Additionally, for the past 15 years, I have posted solicitations all over the internet, asking for help and information, with surprisingly little response at all. Of the 30 phone calls made, I received 20 hang-ups, was treated very rudely on the others with two exceptions and got no answer to any of my 25 letters So, In view of that problem, this list will remain as is, because I will spend no more time nor money alone, trying to validate it in its entirety, without help from others. In other words, I have had it. Nevertheless, I will still make it available to one and all by email free of charge, because there are a few of you out there, who did help, who are decent folks and who truly do appreciate what this represents to them and to their ancestors, descendants and children, and to those few, I say; Thank You.

The earlier ancestors listed, including Elisha, was repeatedly found with their last names spelled all kinds of ways. Elisha, for example, as Bedsol, Bedsolt and Bedsoll, on four Va. Land records in the late 1700's, copies of which are included in the Bedsole History and which I also posted on the Bladen, Harnett and Cumberland County, NC internet sites. Elisha's descendants are not shown due to their assuming the surname BEDSAUL, after he died in 1804. I did have a Bedsaul list as long and detailed as this one is, but loaned it to someone years ago, who kept it. Now I don't recall who it was, but I don't really care because I followed the Bedsole name, and not all the misspellings. In addition, those of the Bedsaul spelling want to claim that Bedsole is simply a misspelling of Bedsaul and of Bledsoe. In fact, I sent their best and most well-known researchers a copy of Elisha's 4 Virginia land deeds, which clearly show his last name as Bedsole, and said researchers changed the Bedsole misspellings on all 4 of them to Bedsaul, then emailed copies to the Bedsaul descendants, claiming he had found them, as Bedsaul documentation. I did not follow females who married and changed their last names to that of their husbands, except to list their children and in some cases, their grandchildren and G-grandchildren. Therefore this list and I, stayed pretty much with the Bedsole name.

ANCESTRAL LINES FOR BEDSOLE, BLEDSOE AND BEDSAUL

For the last name of Bedsole, the ancestral line goes back to Abraham, III to Abraham Bedsole, Jr. and finally to "Abraham Bessow", from Germany. For Bedsaul, instead of to Abraham Jr., it goes back to his brother, Elisha, to Abraham Sr. and then to "Abraham Bessow", from Germany. For Bledsoe, it goes back to William Sr. and Abraham from Germany and their last names along with William Sr's were spelled as Bledsoe on the earliest Va. land records (1719-1726). Keep in mind, that more than one Bedsole changed their last name to Bledsoe and vice versa, of their own free will, for various reasons, and sometimes in error. Also, several had their last name changed to Bedsaul and to Bledsoe back and forth, by the Scribes misspelling it at the time, and not being able to spell themselves, they finally kept it that way, probably by keeping it written on a piece of paper. Also, keep in mind that there is an entirely separate line of BLEDSOE's who came from England, notwithstanding the fact that even those ancestors also originated in Prussia and Germany, as did our Bedsoles. In fact, there was a Bledsoe Community in England, in the year 1061, and that year is not a typo. There is a huge problem created by the mingling of those Bledsoes, with our own ancestors who took on that name as their own in Virginia, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia and North Carolina, prior to 1850. The problem is in researching them, you have no way of knowing if you are looking at a true Bledsoe, or a true Bedsole, on any documentation.

THIS LIST AND HOW TO READ IT

To find a specific name, date, or other info, on a long list such as that below, without having to laboriously read through it, do this; Go to the list. Click on Edit on your top tool bar. On the drop-down, click on Find. Type in the name. Click on Find, or Search, or Go, or whatever it says. It will stop at the first spelling it comes to. If that's not the one you are looking for, click on Continue or Next Page. It works best among several same-names, such as 50 Williams or Johns, by typing in the most unusual name, usually the middle name, or nickname or you can use another name if you know it such as the wife or husbands maiden or last name (If not Bedsole). For example if a name is John Barrett Bedsole, instead of typing in that whole name, only type in Barrett, because its the most unusual. Or if the spouses name is unusual such as Jeanne or Jeter, look for that name. You can also type in a date only, if you have that, and it will also go to every one of those, one at a time.

Any person listed is the child of the first person above them who is a generation earlier or older (A lower number). For example, any person who is a # 6, is a child of the first # 5 above them. Likewise a number 9 will all be children of the first number 8 above them. All children of any parents, may not always be listed immediately under those parents, depending on the number of spouses, children, G-grandchildren, and etc.who fall in-between. All children under parents, are brothers and sisters. So you will find spouses, followed by a child, then that childs spouse, then their children, before you come to another child of the subject parents. A spouse is identified with a + sign. The number of +'s indicates the number of marriages. It does NOT identify the sequence in which a person married that spouse, as I have no way to determine that, when no dates are available. Multiple marriages have the number of plus signs which apply, if I know that. You can easily determine relationships of anyone on the list to anyone else on the list, such as brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles, spouses, children, grandchildren, parents, great-grandparents, cousins, and etc. In my opinion, this method is far superior and simpler, than listing them all separately, as Generation One, then Generation Two and so forth, then going back and listing each generations children etc., separately. That method is cumbersome, unnecessarily and extremely complicated and extremely difficult if not impossible to understand, primarily due to the fact that relationships in that case, are time-consuming, very confusing and difficult to determine with accuracy. Unfortunately, that is the method most internet site Administrators wanted me to use to list the people on this list, but I will not do all that work. In addition though, and the primary reason I said "No" to that was, because that method confuses everyone who reads, or even tries to read it, including me.

Where the year of birth and/or death date is shown, some are my best guess, based on several facts, such as dates of children, spouses, and relatives. Where the specific day and/or month together with the year of birth, death or marriage is shown, then that date was documented.

Some, but not all, ways I found the Bedsole name spelled are; Bessow, Betson, Batson, Betsel, Betzol, Bedsolt, Bedsoll, Bedsol, Blatson, Bletson, Bedsoul, Bedsowl, Bedsoal, Betzold, Bidsole, Bettsol, Petson, Petzo, Petsole, Petsoal, Patson, and many, many others, including the most prevalent since about 1900; Bledsoe...... When researching these people, you must look under every conceivable and many inconceivable spellings and misspellings and variations, just as I had to, or you'll never find them. All these misspellings only add to the confusion and difficulty in finding either ancestors or descendants.

This List shows Thomas Bedsole (Sr.) 1750-1830, as generation 3, so that my already long Bedsole list would fit into this updated list without having to re-number all the generations. This became necessary after I determined that Thomas Sr. was not the first Bedsole in this country. Actually, "Abraham", defined below, born in 1673 in Germany, was the first. However, I didn't find that or figure it out until July 14, 2008. Since "Abraham" and "Rose" are documented as the first Bedsoles, I am through looking and will no longer be in the research business, thank the good Lord.

If your names are not on the following list anywhere, please email me at:jdbedsole@oppcatv.com and give me the names, spouses, children and relationships to each other of those not listed, and I will tell you how they fit onto the list, and I will add them to me Master List, which I keep on this computer. This is my last version. However, I will continue, emailing anyone a free copy of this list, if they need or want it. At least that is easy to do.

FIRST BEDSOLE IN THIS COUNTRY

The following Transportation Deed, giving land to ships captain William Barrow, for transporting "Abraham Batson, Rose his wife and Elizabeth his child", and others to this country on May 1, 1701, (His second arrival here) was to pay him for such transportation. Both Batson and Betson were common misspellings of Bedsole. Back then, people in general, not just the Bedsoles, depended on (English) Scribes to do that. However, Scribes could only spell and write what they thought they had heard, as a name and that was further complicated by most immigrants being unable to speak English. This movement of his wife and child followed "Abrahams" earlier arrival alone, at Bath, NC on September 11, 1700 apparently to first look things over before bringing them here. Their English names were bestowed upon them by Captain Barrow, and therefore, are not German names or spellings. Therefore, we will never know what their real German names were, and for practical purposes, its not extremely important anyway, because no one will ever research them in Germany. As you will read further on, I already tried that.

"Bessow" (pronounced as "Bess-oh" (which is what the Koreans and Chinese called me) was another attempt to spell Betzold, or Bedsole (See Bath County, NC site at: http://www.ncgenweb.us/bath/ then see Doc. 00007 PDF) Ships Captain William Barrow was apparently paid for that first trip with a seperate land deed from William Glover for 200 acres. This Deed below pays for the trip in 1701, and is typed as the original was written the best it could be defined and interpreted, by me, with a magnifying glass. Originally written with a pencil, it was very difficult to read and understand due to the "Olde Englishe" style of writing and spelling and due to being three hundred and eight + years old. On this Deed, our Abraham, Elizabeth and daughter Rose are "Batson's", another frequent misspelling on Bedsole.

Accordingly, on the Ancestor And Descendant List below, you will note several Bedsoles whose last name was changed, some voluntarily, to avoid being found by others, and some unknowingly misspelled by a Scribe at the time.

As for our German version of Bedsole, its spelled Betzold. There are several researchers and others who are interested, trying to look up their Betzold ancestors. I have looked at many with the name, but see no connection between ours and those Betzolds, especially those who arrived here after 1700. If there is any relationship, it is located in Germany, Prussia, or some other country, and I really have no interest in trying to establish any relationship with the name, other than what I have set forth below, as our first German ancestors (Abraham alone on September 11, 1700 and he, wife Rose and daughter Elizabeth, who arrived here May 1, 1701). To my knowledge, no other person related to him came here then, or before then, and that's the way I will leave it.

Transportation Deed

I wrote this deed as it originally appeared, misspellings and all. It was very faded and difficult to read.

State Of North Carolina
To the Survey General or his Deputy. Therein are the name of his Excellency the Palatine and Lord proprietors; to will and require you to survey and lay off for Mr. William Barrow 900 acres of land which is due to him for the transportation of eighteen persons whose names are underwritten, and return this warrant With the survey into the secretaries office fail not as you will answer the contrary. Given under our hands and seal of the Colony the first day of May 1701. Henderson Walker, Samuel Swann, Francis Tomes and William Glover (vic) by asst. James Danville. Passengers were: Thomas Newman, Elizabeth Newman, Jane Newman, William Bush, Martha his wife, Martha his daughter, William Bush Jr., Sarah Bush, Elloner Bush, William Collins, Abraham Batson, Elis Batson, Rose Batson, John Hopkins, Mary Read, Hannah Morrison Richard Morrison and Rosanna Morrison. Know all men that I, William Barrow do lay this foregoing warrant and rites upon an entry of land by me made November the 10th 1701: and also upon the land whereon I now live......Test: Levi Truwhitt C C............SOURCE: Bath County North Carolina Record of Deeds Volume One,1695 to 1729, p. 6, 31.
NOTE: I have been repeatedly surprised by the accuracy reflected in this list over the years, and I invite one and all to prove me wrong on any of it.
Note: It is important to note that "Abraham Bedsole", 1673-1740, is an English name bestowed upon him by the English ships captain upon arrival here on Sept. 11, 1700. Born in Germany......Actual German name unknown, but most likely he had the accurate surname there, of Betzold. Found as Abraham Betzold,/Bessow/Batson/Bledsoe/, Batson/Betson, et al, born most likely in the Brandenburg Province, of the Rhine River Valley of Germany. Died about 1740 in Virginia.. I also found him in Virginia as Abraham Bedsoe, and Bledsoe. He arrived alone by ship at Bath settlement, NC on Sept. 11, 1700, and he arrived there by ship again, on May 1, 1701 with his wife "Rose", and daughter, "Elizabeth", (both English names) age about 8 years. It is very likely he came alone the first time to look things over, then went back and got his family and returned for the second time, to stay. It is apparent that he lived in Bath, NC first, then moved southward and ended up in Russell County, Va. in 1726, where he and son William, jointly owned 1,000 acres, although William apparently got there in 1719, as William Bledsoe on the land record. Although I found no proof, he may have been in NC or Va. Until 1726. On Virginia land records, there is a George and an Isaac Bledsoe, who are most likely sons of Abraham and Elizabeth. + Rose ____? Born in Germany about 1675 and died about 1740 in Virginia. "Abraham" and "Rose" are names which were probably made up by the english ships captain, then carried forward by Scribes. They very likely had more than the following children but if they did, I either never found them, or could not clarify parentage of those I did find. Because "Abraham", "Rose" and "Elizabeth" are english names, its clear to me, that the english ships Captain William Barrow, made those names up, and named them instead of using their German names, which may have been Heuprtsk Bildkodemf, Gertrude Hoppledivhjeenr and Reipftusdse Bldkodemf...."Bedsole" is the english spelling of Betzold, but Barrow likely figured that since they were moving to this country, they may as well have english names. All people below who are numbered 1, are children of Abraham and Rose.

The following people with the Number 1 before their name, are children of Abraham and Rose:

1. Isaac Bedsole/Bledsoe. He either oved to or was born in, Virginia. Since his last name was spelled Bledsoe, those with that surname claim Isaac as their own ancestor, today. No proof either way.
   1. William Bedsole/Bledsoe, (Sr) 1701-02, in NC. Died about 1770 in Va. Also found as Bledsoe in Va. in 1719,1726,1728. It appears to me he stayed in Va. until he died. But if so, his son, William Jr., moved to NC in 1749. William is also claimed as a true Bledsoe, from England. No proof either way, Bedsole or Bledsoe.
   + Elizabeth Cave, 1705-1787.
   + Elizabeth___? 1737-1815, Va.

   3. William Miller Bledsoe
   + Elizabeth Miller.

   NOTE: Elisha’s last name on 4 Va. Land records was; Elisha Bedsol, Elisha Bedsoll on two, and Elisha Bedsolt. Although his descendants have called themselves Bedsaul since his death in 1804, but he was very clearly a Bedsole. + +

NC.
   + George Martin, 1751- in Virginia.

3. John Bedsole, 1753- Born in Va. Moved to SC about 1805. Became a "Bedsel or Betselll".
   + Sarah Brown, 1755-.
NOTE: John above, is on the 1772 and 1782 Orange County, Va. Tax Lists with Elisha. John moved from Virginia to SC in 1790 or so. There, his last name became Betsell then Bedsell, or vice-versa. In 1820, he applied for a pension in SC, for "war service" (Indians ?) , which was granted. His last name is listed there as Bedsell and as Betsell.

   also moved to SC, and acquired land there as Isaac BEDSTILL. Isaac and John his father, most likely travelled together to SC from Va. Isaac ended up in Tenessee in 1830 as a land surveyor, and lived there initially in Haywood County, with Travis Bedsole, near Moses Bledsoe. Clearly they were all relatives. This Isaac was born in Va. about 1790.

4. William Henry (Bedsole) Bedsell, 1795- in Va. as Bedsole/Bedsolt/Bedsoll..He acquired land in Henry County, Georgia in 1821. (Unless that was a different William Bedsole).
   + Elizabeth___?, 1810.....m. 5/22/1833.
5. Isaac Bedsole/Bledsoe, 1780-1850. Isaac later became a land surveyor. He lived in Virginia and NC.

   "Turner Bedsole", his first name was for his grandfather, John Bedsole.
Louisa Williams, 1830-............m. 8/24/1846 in Georgia.
++ Bethina____?.

Turner Bedsell is listed on the 1870 Census for Pike County, Georgia, as Turner Bedsell, age 44, Farmer. Sarah, 21, as Housekeeper, William age 16. Godfrey age 13. Mary age 11. Cornelia age 3 and Turner (Jr.) as age 4. On the 1880 Pike County, Ga. Census, its like this; Godfrey Bedsell, Bethina wife, Jane dau., Levey son, Mary, dau., and Emma as dau. It was William Henry Bedsole who acquired BEDSELL as a last name and it just kept going from there. He moved from Va. to SC to Georgia.

2. William Henry Bedsole, Jr., born 1727 in Va. Died about 1820 in NC, where he lived near Thomas Bedsole, Sr. (If Abraham, III is not the father of Thomas Sr. below, then this William is father.
   + Catherine Cave, 1730-1800 .
   3. Bartlett Bedsole, 1755. Must have died young. No further info on him.
   3. Elizabeth V. Bedsole 1781-1826 born in Va., died in Georgia.

      4. Young G. Goodwin, 06/04/1801, SC d. 1867, Ala.

1. George Bedsole, 1730-1796 ...In Virginia. Name changed to Bledsoe on 1719 Russell County, Va. land record.
   + Elizabeth _____? Not known.
      + Catherine_____? 1730-1800. Married 1749. Virginia. From "Indian Atrocities in Virginia”; Abraham Bledsoe, who settled on the upper part of Reedy Creek in Va. in the year 1772, according to his land survey, but was certainly in the area earlier than this date, for on February 14th, 1770, he was appointed by the Court of Botetourt Co., Va, "Constable in the precinct he lived in upon Reed Creek." He later moved to Moccasin Creek of the North Fork of Holston, where he died near Moccasin Gap in the summer of 1801. His wives was named Catherine, and among his children were: Thomas Bledsoe,(Our Thomas Bedsole, Sr.) born in North Carolina in 1750, and who married on 6 November 1769; Margaret Eakin; Abraham Bledsoe, Jr., and he were perhaps the ones who were captured by the Indians. Three daughters, Thely who married James Eakin, brother of Margaret who married Thomas Bledsoe; Hetty Bittle and Polly Bledsoe". I could not determine with any degree of accuracy, whether this Thomas Bledsoe was actually our Thomas Bedsole. So I am listing him here as a Bledsoe, and further on, as Thomas Bedsole, knowing it is very likely he is one and the same person. I believe he is in fact ours.
   3. Thely Bedsole/Bledsoe
      + James Eakin (Brother is Margaret, above).
   3. Hetty Bittle Bedsole/Bledsoe
   3. Mary "Polly" Bedsle/Bledsoe
   3. John Bedsole,1753-1812. Beaverdam, NC. On 1790 Cumberland County, NC Census. He is listed on the 1790 Census for Sampson County, NC.
That John is listed as John Bedsole, Bedsoul, Bedsolt, Bedsoll and Bedsaul.

+ Sarah Brown, 1755-1815. She was kicked out of the Quaker Church for an "Illegal dalliance outside of marriage". He was in NC and Va., but died in NC. He appears on the 1790 Wake County, NC census as John Bedson and on the 1800 Buncombe, NC Census as John Bedsalt. He is on the Orange County, Va. Taxpayers Lists for 1772 and 1782, along with Elisha, both as Bedsolt. He married 6/9/1774, with Elisha, at Cane Creek, NC. Although John moved to Virginia, he was in NC off and on for many years, but died in NC. A "Junior Willis", was appointed Administrator of his estate, by a court in NC in 1828. John died at 78.

3. Abraham Bledsoe (Bedsole), 1752-1810 Captured by Indians in Va., along with his brother, Thomas (Bartlett) Bedsole (Sr.) but both were later released at "Falls Of The Ohio", in Va..

3. Thomas (Bartlett) Bedsole, (Sr.), 1750-1834. son of Abraham and Catherine Bedsole, above. I believed for many years, he was the first Bedsole here. In "The NC Tax Lists for 1757-1767" by William L. Byrd III; Thomas Bedsole age 17, is listed as living in the household of James West in 1767. Being 17 in 1767 proves his birth year as 1750. Other researchers make the claim he was born in various years during 1757 thru 1768 in various European countries, including Prussia, England, Ireland, and Austria. take your pick, all of which is totally untrue. He was actually born in Bladen County, NC. His first child Rhoda below, was born in 1770 in NC when he was 20 years old. Thomas Sr. did serve in the Revolutionary War 1777-1778. In the manuscript below it states in part; "Thomas Bledsoe, born in North Carolina in 1760 and who married on 6 November 1787; Margaret Eakin"....I take 1750 as his actual birth year, due to his grandparents approval of his age bing 17 in 1767. He is on the 1783 census for Duplin County, NC He is also on Bladen, Johnston Edgecombe and Orange counties land deeds. When Thomas died about 1830, Travis his son, and Travis’ family, had moved to Haywood County, Tennessee. Son Thomas Jr. and family had moved to Lowndes County, Alabama in 1830. Daughter Elizabeth and family moved to Lowndes County, Alabama about 1850, and son Williams son, Amos and family moved to Warren County, Georgia. In his Pension Application in 1834, he was apparently living in Tennessee with son, Travis and his family, who had been living there for 4 years at that time.

Note; Regarding Thomas Bedsole, Sr. above, From The Unpublished Manuscript "INDIAN ATROCITIES" By Emory L. Hamilton Source : Virginia State Papers, Vol. II, page 72 "Along the Clinch, Powell and Holston Rivers, pages 91-92. Captain Abraham Bledsoe, (b. 1730, married to Catherine (above) who was with Col. Evan Shelby on the Chicamauga Campaign of 1779, had a son captured by the Indians whom many writers blandly say was the son of Anthony, or Isaac Bledsoe. That son was also named Abraham. Thomas Bledsoe, another son of Captain Abraham, tells of the capture of his brother in his Revolutionary War pension claim, saying; "The family (Captain Abraham's) moved to about seven miles from the Long Island (now Kingsport, TN) off Holston River, on Reedy Creek, and at this place his father was living when he entered the service of the United States in 1777 (Revolutionary War), as well as he can remember. Thomas Sr. again volunteered under the same Captain to go in pursuit of a party of Indians, who had broken in on the frontiers, and had taken away with them, as prisoner, this applicant's brother; that after pursuing for some time, they came up with the rear guard of the Indians, who gave notice to the advance party and they escaped, taking with them their prisoner, and he was not heard of until he was exchanged at the Falls Of The Ohio". He does not give the date when his brother was released at the Falls of the Ohio, which is today the site of Louisville, Kentucky. The actual date of the capture of the "Bledsoe boy" is given in a letter written by Col. Arthur Campbell to Governor Patrick Henry, dated 25th April, 1781, a few days after the actual happening, wherein he says: " The Northward (Shawnee) Indians have been troubling the people very much this spring, in small parties; killing, captivating and wounding. They come up
Sandy River generally, and on the last occasion, penetrated as far as the settlement on Holston, carrying off a son of Captain Bledsoe's"...

(Note from JD. The 1834 Pension Application of Thomas wherein he was listed as a Bledsoe, clearly identifies this man as our Thomas B. Bedsole, Sr. above. I give Brenda Bedsole of Amite, Louisiana credit for finding that application on the internet, and appreciate her sharing it with us, to clear up the question; Is this our Thomas? That answer is; An unconditional YES!....Thanks Brenda. Brenda is a Court Judge in Amite.

In answer to the question, "How did you determine that our direct ancestor was actually Abraham instead of his brother, William Henry Bedsole?" I had already known that Thomas B. Bedsole, Sr. and son Travis Bedsole, had both served in the Revolutionary War during 1777-1778, but had not found their Pension Applications with some of the above info until Brenda sent me a copy. So, instead of searching for "Indians and Tories", they were also looking for British invaders and infiltrators, (Revolutionary War) they were also blocking the British from advancing from Wilmington to Charleston, and were blocking the Tories from joining with the British army, when all this happened. I also noted on his Application, that Thomas guessed at his birth year as 1760, "as the best I can remember". I know that date is not true because his first child was born in 1770, when he would have been 10 years old. Therefore, I backed his year of birth to 1750, which coincides with his age in 1767 on the NC Tax List, as being 17 that year. As both he and his grandparents with whom he had been living would most certainly have known his correct age then. In his Pension Application, he stated that he did not recall his father, but that he had been "Removed from NC", "Removed" meaning he had left voluntarily, while Thomas was very young, and that statement supported my previous belief that Thomas was living with his grandparents, not his parents, in 1767. Here are a few of the facts which led me to conclude now that it was the "Thomas Bledsoe" listed in an Application For Pension, and in "Indian Atrocities, whose father was actually Abraham, and not Abrahams brother, William Henry Bedsole, Jr......To answer the question; How do you know this is our Thomas and not a different Thomas?", back some time ago, I pasted a whole article entitled "Indian Atrocities", as part of the List, wherein I alluded to the fact that I could not be certain that that particular Thomas was, or was not, ours. But then, with the uncovering of the Application For Pension, by Thomas "Bledsoe", several facts became clear to me; 1. That the date of the Application was 1834, and that Thomas was in Tennessee with son Travis, at that time. I already knew that his son Travis and wife, Nancy Simmons, moved there in 1830, so he had someone there to go live with, and 2. That Thomas at the time of the Application, was aged 84, and in his application he stated to the effect that he could not remember, but his best guess at his year of birth was 1760. I already knew that their birthdates, full names, ages and etc., were the last thing on earth they needed to ever remember back then and, that my own parents, grandparents, relatives and other "dirt diggers", never could recall their dates of birth either, and 3.

That Thomas was in the "Governments Service" during 1777 and 1778 and I already knew that. I also knew that he was in the service of "Patrollers" in Virginia and, that although their primary purpose was to look for Indians, runaway slaves and tories, their secondary purpose during those two years, while the Revolutionary War was going on, was to look for British army "Penetrators" and "Infiltrators" into those areas which they patrolled, as assigned, and as was necessitated by circumstances at any given time, by indians and tories. I also knew that only the officers in charge of the Patrollers knew they were also to be on the lookout for the British, resulting in the "flunkies" such as Thomas (A private), had no clue as to their full mission-purpose assignments and, 4. Thomas stated in the Application, that he had little recollection of his father who had "Removed" (Left willingly) NC when Thomas was very young and, 5. I also knew that our Thomas was on the 1767 NC Tax List, at "Age 17" living with his Maternal grandparents, and that fits with the Thomas in question making the statement that his father left when Thomas was young, and I knew that thats what happened when I was young and the father left the family, or died and, 6. I also knew that since July 14th, 2008, when I discovered "Abraham Bessow" in Bath County, NC, I determined that either his descendant Abraham Bedsole, b.1730 or William Henry, b. 1727 was the father of our Thomas and could never determine which one it was. I eventually decided on William Henry due to the strong custom then and even until today, to name ones first son after the Paternal Grandfather or if dead, the Maternal Grandfather, and the first daughter after the Maternal Grandmother, or if dead, then the Paternal Grandmother, regardless of any other claim of how the "Custom" of naming ones children "usually" occurred. So all that, plus a million other things I have not listed, causes me to conclude that. I already knew that Travis was in Haywood County, Tennessee and that he had initially taken on the last name spelling as "Bidsole","Betson", and finally as Bledsoe and 2, Thomas Bedsole,Sr. as Thomas Bledsoe, was in Virginia except for the time he was in NC which is documented only by land records, during the period 1779 through 1798. So apparently, he moved there after getting out of governmental service in Virginia, following the end of the Revolutionary War and, 3.. Abraham III is in fact, the father of our Thomas Sr., and that the similarities of several things in the "Indian Atrocities" in Virginia, Chalkleys Chronicles, and in the Application For Petition, are all too familiar and too similiar to other, actual circumstances to be merely coincidental, some of them cannot be taken in any fashion as coincidental, because taken as a whole, they simply serve to strengthen my assertion that our Thomas Bedsole was in NC and Va. and the Thomas "Bledsoe" on the Application in Tennessee, in the Indian Atrocities manuscript, and in the application, are all one and the same. Since our Thomas is only otherwise documented as living in NC from 1779 through 1798, and he filed his application for pension in 1834, when he lived in Tennessee, it seems to me that he moved from NC to Va. to NC. About 1834 he moved to Tennessee, where in 1830, his son Travis and wife Nancy Simmons had moved from NC. Thomas was 80 years old then, and was 84 when he filed the pension in 1834.

6. Duncan Bedsole, 1841-

Below are JD’s GG-Grandparents.

He was apparently a drunk and was mean to Charlotte and their children too. She took their last and youngest child with her (Travis Bertram Bedsole) and left him in 1850 in Butler County, Greenville, Ala., and never went back, although she lived another 42 years. Thomas, Jr. with brother, Travis, was in the War of 1812, in NC. In 1830, he and son Henry, with families, were in both Lowndes, Coffee and Montgomery Counties, Alabama. The earliest I have found any of his group in Ala. According to Census data. His movements after he moved to Alabama in 1830, were Luverne, Crenshaw Counties, 1834 Crenshaw County, 1837 Dale County, 1841 Coffee County, 1849 Coffee, 1841-1858 Houston, 1859 Coffee, 1850 Butler, 1860 Butler. He apparently died about 1868 in Butler County, (Greenville) Alabama..

5. Hannah Francis "Fannie" Bedsole 5/1825 NC-1901. Fla.....m .in Ala.1843.
   + John Johnson, 1820-1898 NC. Lowndes County, Ala., Holt, Fla.

Notes on Hannah: Census for1850 Rocky Mount, Lowndes County, Alabama (Age 25 yrs).
Census: 1860 Name shown as Francis Simmons. In the Census for1860 Hannah's Surname spelled as Sammons. Census: 1860 Township Not Stated, Walton County, Florida. Hannah is 36....Census:
Santa Rosa County, Fla. In 1900, at age 75, Hannah is shown in the home of her daughter, Laurena
Simmons/Johnson below with Laurenas husband and 9 children. Census for1900 also shows Hannah had given birth to 9 children, 6 still living. Living with her daughters family, meant a tiny, two room log house with 12 people living in it. That was a hard life. But back then, there was no place else to go and no money to go with, so when the husband died, the wife had no choice but to go to move in with one of her children.

Sessoms Bedsole, 3/25/1790-1892. (I personally believe Sessoms was born in 1806 and not 1812, because Charlotte was married at age 16.). Census Occupations: "Drunkard" and "Rustler". Here are some things I know about him. He was born in Beaverdam, NC. He and his brother Henry, came to Alabama from NC sometime in 1820, apparently on an initial "scouting trip" to look over the land, army forts, indians, and etc., as the larger group of Thomas Jr. and family, Thomas English and family, and William and Margaret Davis were to come later, and they did so in 1830. He acquired 40 acres at Sellers, Alabama on that trip. Henry acquired 160 acres there. His first name is Sessoms, not Sessions. He was named after Thomas Sessoms who lived near Sessoms father, Thomas Bedsole, Jr. in NC. He acquired 39.99 acres of land near Sellers, Alabama, which is about 40 miles north of here, on April 24, 1820, when he and Henry were looking around. Henry eventually moved to Sellers from NC. Sessoms acquired land in Montgomery County, Ala. in 1837, then apparently lived near Henry until 1850, then moved his family to Old Town, Alabama about 3 miles from here, where his brother Travis B. Bedsole, lived. At Old Town, my Grandfather, Travis Bedsole, had a sawmill there. (Another Sessoms brother) was living near where Travis's sawmill was located at Old Town and Sessoms worked for him there. At Old Town, in 1850, Sessoms mother, Charlotte, who had left Thomas, Jr.that year, is shown living in a house with son Travis aged 17. The same year, same census, she is shown living in the house with Sessoms. I have been inside those log houses and one that Travis built too. Each house had a log barn. My two oldest brothers used to farm the 80 acres surrounding those two houses. That 80 acres is now covered with huge trees. Those two log houses rotted down about 1950. Where Travis had his sawmill, at Old Town, you can still see the long, wide and deep, slanted ditch which was used to back the wagons loaded with sawed planks down to the river, where a barge carried them to Savannah, Georgia and Charleston, SC to build houses. In 1850, Sessoms moved his family to Warrenton, Georgia and they lived there near his first cousin, Amos Bedsole and family. But after a few months, Sessoms moved his family first to Butler County, Greenville, Alabama, where his father lived, then with his mother and his own wife and family, he moved to Mossy Head, Fla. in 1860, into another log house near Edward, another brother of his. While living near Edward (I have also also been inside those two log houses and log barns) In 1860, Sessoms stole two of his neighbors cows and sold them as his own. He then went to jail for Rustling. He got 20 years. From 1860 until 1880, Sessoms was in jail for "Rustling". His family remained there near Edward at Mossy Head, and Sessoms mother, Charlotte lived with them. In 1870, the family moved to Warrenton, Georgia, near Amos Bedsole, then to Mossy head again.In 1880, Sessoms got out of jail, and returned home. His wife, Charlotte, and mother, also a Charlotte, were then living at Mossy Head, Fla., and Sessoms moved them to Victoria, Alabama, just NW of Elba, Alabama. Then In 1882, Sessoms wife Charlotte died, Sessoms then married Reecca Sellers. Apparently after getting out of jail, Sessoms returned home and to staying drunk, because his mother Charlotte, moved out and went to Holt, Fla. and lived with her granddaughter, Hannah, who was living there in a log house with husband John Johnson and family. John worked at a sawmill, dragging logs from the woods to the mill with two mules. Charlotte remained with them until she died in 1892. Meantime, Sessoms was living at Mossy Head until he died, in1892. Then in 1892, Edward moved his family and Sessoms wife,

   Germany, WW-II. B-17G pilot. He was shot down by a German Me-109 Fighter plane on 4/13/1944 over Germany, exactly at Longitude and Latitude; 49-55N... 09-26E. His plane was last seen diving to the ground with its right wing on fire. No parachute was ever seen.
   It was assumed, he died in the plane. Notes on J.L. Bedsole, et al;

Joseph L. Bedsole, (Sr) moved to Mobile from Thomasville, Ala. in 1919 when he purchased Van Antwerp’s wholesale drug operation. He organized Bedsole-Colvin Drug Company, S. B. Adams Lumber Company, Bedsole Investment Company, Bedsole Surgical Supply Company, and Mobile Fixture and Equipment Company. He was director of the First National Bank of Mobile for over 50 years. Mr. Bedsole served as the first chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University of Mobile. While serving as chairman of the Mobile Chamber of Commerce in 1926, Mr. Bedsole was responsible for organizing the first Mobile Community Chest, which later evolved into the United Way of southwest Alabama. During the Depression, Bedsole was called to serve on a committee to assist the city of Mobile in recovering from $1.5 million in indebtedness on its municipal bonds. Bedsole served as director Alabama Power Company. In his lifetime, he contributed more than $1.5 million for the improvement of the state. He also acted as chairman of the campaign to raise the original $2 million to build the new Mobile Infirmary on the present campus. His lifelong emphasis on education and economic development led to the formation of The J. L. Bedsole Foundation in 1949. · Massey Palmer Bedsole - 6 feet, 6 inches tall-was a native of Mobile but he and his wife both had Clarke County roots. Bedsole was a nephew of J. L. Bedsole, the founder of the old Bedsole Department Store chain and of a wholesale pharmaceutical business and surgical supply business, Bedsole Surgical. Bedsole sold Bedsole Surgical in 1998 to the Caligor division of Henry Schein.. Palmer Bedsole lost his father at a young age and J. L. Bedsole’s son was killed in World War II and the two were more like father and son than uncle and nephew. Palmer Bedsole was the longtime chairman of the J. L. Bedsole Foundation, which has benefited projects throughout southwest Alabama. Palmer Bedsole was a benefactor of the Centre for the Living Arts, a nonprofit Mobile organization that operates Space 301, an art gallery, and the Saenger Theatre. The owners of Bedsole Land Company agreed in 2005 to dissolve the 35-year-old family-owned company and divide the property, over 16,000 acres, rather than take a dispute over its management and operation to trial. The plaintiffs in the case—J. Russell Goodloe Jr., James G. Bedsole III, James L. Goodloe, Mary Ann Bedsole, Travis Massey Bedsole, Travis B. Goodloe and Mary Ellis Gazaway—will receive 58.7 percent of the value of the property and defendant Palmer Bedsole will receive 41.3. The plaintiffs in the case had accused the company president, Palmer Bedsole, J. L. Bedsole’s nephew, of using his position to control the company. Bedsole countered that the plaintiffs owned a majority of the corporation and therefore always retained effective control.

A tribute to my parents: They were married at the courthouse in Elba, Alabama, on November 30, 1912, by Probate Judge S.P. Samples. Their marriage was witnessed by "Relatives And Friends". Her parents were John Burress Farmer, a Preacher, and Sara Frances Smith, of Elba, Alabama. Mom was a Homemaker from age 16.

These are my parents who worked all their desperately poor lives just to feed us 9 children, when they could not have provided adequately for 3. They were the poorest of the poor sharecroppers who ever lived. They were nevertheless, very loving, very religious, and made all 9 of us children go to church all our "Growing up" years. My dad above, died at age 56, because his heart was so enlarged it could not “Beat”. He and my Mom worked and starved themselves to death in order to feed something to us children, and I am amazed to this day, how they never lost their trust, faith, commitment to, and belief in, God, and how they had the most amazing strength, commitment, and determination to do their very best with what pathetically little they had, for their children, when they really had nothing to work with. It was a pitiful, totally one-sided battle, which they fought with everything they had all their lives. They never gave up, and thats the biggest thing I inherited from them. You can see it in this History and List; For 58 years, regardless of the amount of time and effort it took I never gave up, and at the end, it was finally finished. Regardless of the fact they really never had anything, they were without doubt, the very best of the very best and we all loved them dearly..

THE BEDSOLE AND BLEDSOE RELATIONSHIP

Sept. 11, 1700. Abraham Bessow arrived at Bath, NC on an English ship. It is not known if the ship came directly from Germany, or if Abraham had shipped from Germany to England, then to Bath, NC. On his Passenger List, the Captain listed him as; "Abraham Bessow, ...A Pal.", meaning a Palatine, who were German, and who shipped to this country especially during the period 1700-1710.

Looking back in time, it is likely that Abraham was born 1673, died 1740 and Rose a couple of years afterward. Also we can guess that Elizabeth was their first child, and likely born 1690-1695. Its also apparent to me that they had son, William Henry, about 1701-02, in NC since he was not with them when they arrived at Bath in 1701, and he acquired land in Va. in 1719.

After a land Grant of 1782 to William Bledsoe, there are other Bledsoes who were granted land in Virginia. In 1782 another William Bledsoe was granted land, but his age by then makes it unlikely that this is the same William Bledsoe born in 1701-02. He is more likely William Jr. b. 1727.

The name changes though, are whats really important. In Germany, theres no way to know what "Abraham"s first name really was. But its safe to assume his last name was actually Betzold. In this country, at first, he was "Abraham Bessow", then "Abraham Batson", and William its safe to assume, was also a Batson. But when William arrived in Virginia, he became William Bedsoe, then Bledsoe.

Elisha Bedsole, received 4 land grants all during the early 1780's and 1790's there, as Elisha Bedsol, 2 as Elisha Bedsoll and the fourth as Elisha Bedsolt. He and a John Bedsolt are listed on the 1772 and 1782 Orange County, Virginia tax lists as "Bedsolt". Elisha, born in 1730 was married at Cane Creek, NC to Mary Edwards on Sept. 15, 1751. So, he obviously moved from NC to Virginia too. It is very likely that Elisha was a son of William Henry Bedsole, Sr. important things though are: 1. As far as Bedsole is concerned, in the United States; William Sr., is the BLEDSOE and Elisha is the BEDSAUL name sources, occurring in Spotsylvania County, Va. and; 2. Abraham III is the BEDSOLE name source, occurring in 1749 when he moved to Bladen County, NC. Thats true even though it was all the fault of the English Scribe(s) at the time the misspellings occurred. Keep in mind though that some Bedsoles changed their last name to Bledsoe on purpose in attempts to escape the law, ex-wives or husbands, or because they disliked their relatives or landlords, to whom they owed money, and did not want to pay that debt.

Also, I am aware that a George Bletso/Bledsoe was born in 1663 in England, who moved to Virginia in the late 1680's. However he and his descendants are true Bledsoes, and were not from Germany, although I know their ancestors were (before they moved to England).

if you did not see your own family on this list, or you saw errors on it, please add/correct it, as needed yourself, for I am finished with it. I am like the old Bedsole census taker in Sampson County, NC in 1826. He was being paid 50 cents for every hundred people he located and houses then were 5 to 12 miles apart, and his transportation was by mule. He wrote in his letter of resignation; "I have been shot at over and over, been dog bit, cow stomped, bull hooked, mule kicked, chicken pecked, lightning struck, starved to death for days on end, shot at some more, chased by indians for miles with dogs, guns, bows and arrows, stayed lost for days, fell in the river 25 times and been called every foul name imaginable. I have been out here 22 days and have made little more than one dollar. .......................I quit ".

I called this page 260 in order to round off the number of pages to an even number. In the future, perhaps some other Bedsole will continue what I have started, because there are at least a million Bedsoles who were born just since I started this in 1950, and about whom I know nothing whatsoever. In addition, that million will have been married and produced another million. My point is; There is actually no end to this story, until the end of the world comes. But I am willing to bet you that no other Bedsole will even attempt it, much less carry it through. So, count your blessings that I did produce this for you all to see.
