

Mrs. Way of Mrs. Way's Museum.

Every year Miss Lona Bonner (later Carawan) would take her 4th & 5th grade classes to Washington, NC. There are a series of pictures here depicting that trip when Trish and I were in the 4th grade. For many of these kids, going to Washington was an "event." However, since Dad worked for Eureka he had to go to Washington at least every other Friday to pick up payroll; so I was often in Washington.

I do not remember the significance of the candelabra. Doris Rayburn and Carol Williams in the door.

Mainly 5th graders drinking up the free drinks.

Miss Lona; I think we're at the Washington Daily News.

Actually this is when we went the next year as I see those in the grade below us.

Peacocks in Chocowinity.

A number of classroom shots from Miss Bonner's classroom. I think this was the 4th grade as I see some in the class ahead of me in some of the pictures.

A black and white photograph of a classroom. Several students are seated at desks, looking towards the camera. A white text box is overlaid on the image, containing the text "8th or 9th grade classroom." The classroom has a simple design with a single light fixture hanging from the ceiling. The students are dressed in casual attire typical of the mid-20th century.
